Quite a Number of Interesting Things Have Happened in Our Very Midst During Fair Week

OPEN FIRE ON THE SOLDIERS

Military Outposts Target for Bullets in Coal Strike Region.

EARLY EXCHANGE OF SHOTS BRISK

Martial Law Zone in West Virginia to Be Again Enlarged.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 14.—Military outposts were fired on during the early hours of today at Holley in the heart of the territory under martial law because of the miners' strike. The pickets replied and for a time the exchange of shots was brisk, but a careful search of the wooded hillsides from which the shots came showed no evidence that the shots had taken effect. When the shooting was reported to military headquarters, Companies A and E, West Virginia national guard, of Parkersburg, and Company J, of Fairmont, were ordered to the place. They are under command of Captain White, of Parkersburg.

This is pay-day in the unionized section on the north bank of the Kanawha river, where the men struck last week, but returned to work on Tuesday. It was signalled at Hugheston by a fight which began at 9 o'clock, the shooting being general. It is reported here that contending factions of miners were engaged, but the result of the fighting is not known.

Military authorities are of the opinion that the territory under martial law

SMASH ROMANCE AND TRADITION

Remarkable Marriage Contract Just Signed Up at Los Angeles.

UNIQUE IN ITS TERMS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 14.—Conventions are ignored and traditions of romance ruthlessly shattered in a marriage contract signed by Miss Heluz Chandler, aged 21, daughter of Julia Davis Chandler, author, of Philadelphia, and Carlton W. Washburne, aged 23, son of Marion Foster Washburne, author and lecturer, of Pasadena.

"The young couple met a week ago; their marriage license was issued yesterday, the pre-nuptial agreement signed and sealed, and tomorrow they will be joined in legal marriage, which step they take, the agreement declares, for the happiness of their children and for the free intercommunication of the parents with the rest of society.

The marriage contract specifically sets forth that the marriage shall not be a bond giving either any control over, or possession of the other; that it shall not be a bar to other marriage should this prove unfruitful; that the ties shall terminate simultaneously with the death of love on either side and neither shall have the right to restrain the other, should he or she see fit to incur other parental responsibility. It proves since that at present the state provides no income for mother and children that it shall be the duty of the man to share equally with his wife all earnings and property at such times as she may be incapacitated for work; that the expense of the household and the children shall be equally divided. In case of separation they agree that the final responsibility shall be divided, no matter through whose fault the divorce might occur.

Washburne and his fiancée are both college graduates and he of the University of Chicago and Stanford; she of two Philadelphia institutions.

HAYES LOSES JOB ON FORCE

New York Police Inspector Ousted for His Attack on Waldo.

OUTGROWTH OF ROSENTHAL CASE

Finding of Guilty is Made Public by Deputy Commissioner McKay.

New York, Sept. 14.—Cornelius G. Hayes, the demoted police inspector who was recently placed on trial for making a statement alleged to be false, reflecting on Police Commissioner Waldo, was found guilty of the charges today and dismissed from the department. First Deputy Commissioner McKay, who presided at the trial, announced his findings shortly after noon.

The statement by Hayes which led to his demotion from the rank of inspector to captain and his suspension from duty was made in the presence of four other inspectors at police headquarters and was to the effect that Waldo had enjoined him from raiding disorderly houses without express instructions.

Hayes thus declared himself not long after the murder of Rosenthal, the gambler, at a time when there were inquiries afoot to determine what the police were doing to better conditions in the "tenderloin." At the trial Hayes repeated this statement and defended his course on the ground that he was carrying out what he understood to be Mayor Gaynor's policy of "outward order and decency."

BAD SITUATION IN CLEVELAND

City is Being Used as Recruiting Station for White Slaves.

POLICE GET ORDERS

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 14.—Conclusive evidence that Cleveland is being used as a recruiting station for white slaves, has been found by Probation Officer Christian, in an investigation, the result of which was made known today.

Chief of Police Kohler immediately ordered the entire police force to double their efforts to stamp out the evil. Christian reports that there is organized efforts between handsomely gowned women, well dressed young men, waiters in restaurants and grills and dance hall and moving picture show attaches to procure young girls frequenting these places. He has advised the police to watch a house in the swell residence district, which he declares is being used as a rendezvous.

The police attribute the disappearance of twenty-three girls during the last two months to white slaves. It is believed they have been taken to other cities.

The municipal park dance halls were bitterly attacked today by Assistant County Prosecutor Kornhauser as contributory to white slavery. He censured Mayor Newton D. Baker for allowing them to be opened and declared that if what he hears is true, "Mayor Baker and the entire board of control ought to be arrested for contributing to the delinquency of Cleveland girls."

Kornhauser declared that "Girls of tender age are ruined every night at the city's dance halls in Edgewater and Woodland Hills park."

He said that he had been told that girls of 14 and 15 years are being procured for white slavery at both places.

Jack Cook, tried in municipal court today on a white slavery charge was sentenced to pay fifty dollars and costs and serve thirty days in the work house.

Wytheville, Va., Sept. 14.—Victor Allen, last of the Allen clansmen to be tried, was acquitted yesterday of the charge of having participated in the Carroll county court house murders at Hillsville last March.

It took the jury only half an hour to find its verdict declaring Allen not guilty of the murder of the Carroll county prosecuting attorney, W. M. Foster. The verdict brought a demonstration from the spectators, a large portion of whom were women. At the request of counsel for the state the

GOV. EBERHARDT ON STRIKE SCENE

Counsels Delay in Calling Out State Militia at Duluth.

FEW CARS RUNNING

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 14.—Governor Eberhardt took cognizance of the street car strike situation here today, spending several hours in an investigation to determine whether the state troops should be ordered out as requested by the local sheriff yesterday. Before leaving for St. Paul the executive said he had counselled delay in calling the military.

The sheriff's deputies today supplanted the police as guards of the company's property.

Because of danger of continued rioting on account of the street car strike here, few cars were being operated.

The first of a series of suits against the street car company will be heard today, the idea being to force resumption of service through injunction. The cars that are running have each a crew of three men and the windows are heavily grated.

George A. Reddon, of Chicago, a strike breaker, this forenoon was reported dying in a local hospital. Yesterday he fired on a crowd of sympathizers and was roughly handled. His skull is said to be fractured.

One result of the strike is that many dockmen, mill hands and others are quitting work "to go help the strikers. An army of tramps has flocked to the city.

OPENING BUT A YEAR AWAY

Panama Canal to Be Put in Service During the Fall of 1913.

FAR IN ADVANCE OF OLD SCHEDULE

Official Announcement Made by Navy Department at Washington.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The Panama canal is to be opened to traffic in the fall of 1913. This statement was made officially at the navy department, with the announcement that the Atlantic fleet would be rendezvoused at Colon this winter before the water is turned in. The navy's estimate is based upon the latest report from the army engineers.

Secretary Meyer, after consulting with the Isthmian canal commission, discovered that construction work on the canal had progressed so far that unless action was taken immediately there was a probability that the men of the fleet would have no opportunity to examine the connecting link between the two oceans before it was on operation. The visit of the fleet will include railroad trips for the men throughout the canal zone.

While there has been much speculation and a number of prophecies concerning the early opening of the canal, the navy department was the first to announce the surprising fact officially. The date for the opening originally was set for January 1, 1915, and engineers for some time had doubted if the engineering difficulties could be overcome to permit completion of the work by that date. The remaining work is said to offer few obstacles.

BAD LOANS COST THE STATE $7,000

Some Counties Not Careful Enough in Matter of Securities.

WHAT REPORT SHOWS

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 14.—The actual loss to the state through bad loans by counties of parts of the principal of the common school funds or the congressional township school funds amounted last year to approximately $7,000, according to a report of the conditions of the two funds made public by Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction. The amount of funds that now are unsafely invested in the various counties total $16,000. The figures showing the condition of both funds in each county in the state have been compiled under the direction of John I. Hoffman, a deputy in Mr. Greathouse's office.

In the report it is shown that several of the counties in the state still hold congressional township school lands. The sale of such lands, made in the school year of June, 1911, to June, 1912, materially decreased the total amount in the state. The total number of acres of such land remaining unsold now is 359.6. The sales of such land during the school year just passed amounted to $2,206.70.

SULLIVAN IS OUTPOINTED

Sydney, N. S. W., Sept. 14.—An Australian heavy weight boxer named Sanders, outpointed Jack Sullivan, an American pugilist, in a scheduled twenty round contest here today. Sullivan was being badly punished and the police stopped the bout in the eighteenth round.

MUTSUHITO NOW AT REST IN TOMB

Last Solemn Rites for the Late Emperor of the Japanese.

LONG JOURNEY ENDS

Kioto, Japan, Sept. 14.—The last solemn function in the funeral ceremonies, which began at Tokio yesterday morning, of the late Emperor Mutsuhito took place tonight when the body of the departed ruler was buried in the imperial mausoleum at Monoyama. On arrival at Monoyama the coffin was removed from the train and placed on a funeral palanquin for conveyance to the imperial tomb by hereditary bearers selected from the farmers of Yase village.

Prince Kanin, representative of Emperor Yoshihito, the princess representing the other members of the imperial family, and Prince Fushimi headed the procession which walked behind the palanquin.

Amid the offering of prayers and the chanting of dirges the body was removed to the burial hall and placed in the tomb. During the 250-mile journey the train made several stops to permit the people of the country districts to pay their respects to the dead sovereign. Thousands gathered along the route and bowed their heads as the train passed by. An imperial salute was fired by the Japanese warships in Tokio bay as the funeral train passed along the coast toward Yokohama.

The casket had been left in the funeral hall at Oayama by the imperial family, in charge of the Shinto ritualists and representatives of his majesty. A special railroad line had been built from the main track to a small station in the rear of the funeral hall, and there the funeral train was in waiting. The train was composed of a large locomotive draped with mourning flags, a composite car and four other passenger cars, the funeral car occupying the center of the train. The interior of the funeral car was divided into three compartments, the center one being reserved for the coffin. This middle room was fitted with a side door to permit of the passage of the huge casket. The outside of the car was painted crimson and the interior covered with white silk.

The party of mourners that accompanied the late emperor's body on its journey to Monoyama included the holders of the Orders of Merit, of ministers of state, of the army, of the navy and of various grades of officials. The commander of the Sixteenth division of the Manchurian naval station accompanied the train, together with the president of the house of peers and the house of representatives, the governor of Kioto prefecture, the president of the Kioto assembly and a number of peers residing in the district of Kioto.

PREPARES FOR A LONG SIEGE

Gen. Wood Orders Army Supply Post Established at El Paso, Tex.

REVOLUTION IS NOT NEAR CLOSE

Reign of Anarchy is Reported from Southern Mexico.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, today ordered a general army supply post established at El Paso, Texas. Conditions in Mexico are reported to the war department as chaotic. Starvation during the coming winter threatens to add to the suffering. The rural population has been unable to plant or cultivate crops.

Gen. Wood's action is taken to indicate that officials believe the revolution will be protracted.

Reports of anarchy in Southern Mexico reached the state department, with information that Americans and other foreigners were seeking refuge in Mexico City. The Madero government is rushing troops into the disaffected districts, but the necessity for maintaining formidable force in the vicinity of the capital is hampering the program. Trains are being wrecked and looted by bandits in the state of Chihuahua and in one instance several passengers were killed, none of them, however, being Americans. This information was transmitted to the department with the statement that all was quiet along the border.

WOMEN TO USE WHIPS AND CLUBS ON THE GAMBLERS

Larned, Kan., Sept. 14.—Horsewhips and clubs are the weapons of the woman's anti-gambling association of Larned, members of which threatened today to use them on the city gamblers if they do not leave the home loving husbands of this town alone.

Following futile efforts by the police to rid the town of the gamblers, the women met today and issued an ultimatum that they intended to take the law into their own hands.

A Near-Cock-of-the-Walk

"I NOTICE," observed Fred B. Owen, "that Bert Mills has been breaking into print to describe his new game of 'cow carom.' I was much interested in his vivid description of the game, but I had an experience myself the other day that was equally as good. We were spinning along a country road in our machine—my wife and little girl and myself—when we saw ahead of us a fine big rooster stopping directly in the middle of the road.

"We drew near to him in a few seconds, but he didn't budge. I tooted the horn and yelled at him but there he stood. The only thing about him that didn't fit the appellation of 'Cock of the walk' was that there wasn't any walk. Well, we slowed down to such a point that we were barely moving, but I kept tooting the horn to scare him out of the way. He designed to cock his head on one side and survey as in a poultryified scornful way, seeming to be very greatly bored and annoyed.

"Well, sir, he stayed right there until the tire rubbed against him and showed him off at the side of the road, but he tried all the while to stand his ground. I was so busy watching the rooster that I didn't notice a man who was sitting on the fence near-by watching the procedure. I thought the fellow would injure his laughing apparatus, but he seemed only to add to the ruffled feelings of the rooster who, as we looked back still stood there and surveyed us with as much Chanticleer disdain as one could imagine."

With Chanticleer disdain.

Beveridge Pays His Respects in Huntingdon Speech.

Huntingdon, Ind., Sept. 14.—Albert J. Beveridge last night took occasion to pay his respects to Winfield T. Durbin, former governor of Indiana, who Thursday at Marion delivered his "keynote" speech as the candidate of the republican party for re-election.

Former Governor Durbin's speech was devoted largely to a business review of his administration, as compared with the present democratic administration. Mr. Beveridge quoted a section from a book bearing the title, "Messages of J. Frank Hanly, Governor of Indiana, 1905-1909," which section intimated that in the opinion of Governor Hanly, Winfield T. Durbin had been a poor financial manager.

It was stated this morning that Governor Glasscock had ordered an investigation with that end in view and the proclamation is expected before Sunday night. It is being needed to send troops into the disturbed towns.

PISTOL-MAKERS STRIKE

Labor Trouble in Colt Firearms Factory at Hartford, Conn. Hartford, Conn., Sept. 14.—A strike involving 130 skilled mechanics at the plant of the Colt Patent Firearms Manufacturing company began this morning. It was confined entirely to the department in which the 45-caliber automatic revolvers for the United States government are being made. The men claim the piece work prices paid have been so jammed that they are equivalent to a reduction in wages and declare that if the matter is not adjusted the entire factory force, numbering nearly 1,600 hands will be called out. The Colt company is running night and day on government work.

GOVERNOR SUBMITS PLAN

Glasscock Has Scheme to Settle Mine Strike Troubles.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 14.—Gov. Glasscock today submitted to coal operators and representatives of the striking miners of the Kanawha field his plan for the settlement of the troubles that have called 1,200 soldiers into the field to maintain martial law in several counties of the state. Details of the proposition are: All questions in dispute between coal operators and miners to be submitted to a board of arbitration to consist of one man selected by the operators, one by the miners and in case the two thus selected are unable to agree upon a third man within three days after their first meeting the third man to be appointed by the governor or by the secretary of commerce and labor.

other indictments against him were dismissed. Allen, who was surrounded by his wife and four children, was much affected when the verdict was given and, as he shook hands with the jurors, tears coursed down his cheeks.

The acquittal of Victor Allen brought to a close, for the present, at least, the trials of the members of the Allen clan for the murders at Hillsville, where the presiding judge, the sheriff, commonwealth's attorney, a juror and a witness met death at the hands of the Allen clan. For the crimes two men have been sentenced to the electric chair, Florid Allen and Claud Allen, brother and brother of the man acquitted yesterday. Two other members of the clan, Friel Allen and Sidna Edwards, were given long terms in the penitentiary.

QUITS EFFORT TO LOCATE A. E. HOUK

State No Longer Seeks Him as Witness Before the Grand Jury.

IS OUT AS CHAIRMAN

Efforts upon the part of the state to obtain the presence of Attorney Amos E. Houk, until within a day or two chairman of the republican party in Allen county, before the grand jury to testify as a witness were abandoned this morning, and none of the authorities had resumed a search for him up to this afternoon when the jurors convened for what was intended to be the final session of that body for the present.

Just what action has been taken by the grand jury, if any, is a matter that no one in authority is permitted under the law to disclose in advance of the report of the grand jury.

Can Not Be Located. In an effort to obtain a statement from him his home and office have been visited but his wife, Samuel Houk, his father, and William R. Houk, a brother, say they do not know where he is.

"A man who knows Mr. Houk stated that he was at home in consultation last night with his father," was suggested to Mrs. Houk and in reply she said:

"They know more about it than I do." Both the father and brother say absolutely they do not know where he is. Today the directors of the German Realty company held a meeting at which the books of the concern were examined. Samuel Houk said while this was being carried on:

"We are not ready to give out any statement because we do not know what to say. We are going right through everything and after this is done if there is anything to say it will be plenty of time to say it."

He declined to enter into any further discussion of the matter. At the Houk home on South Calhoun street there was no response to a rap at the front door and there was nothing to indicate that anybody was at home.

Insisting on Payment. That Amos E. Houk was indebted to the German Realty company, of which he was treasurer, is not denied, and that persistent efforts had been made to obtain a settlement is also admitted. Chief interest in the case is said to center about a certificate of deposit on the Hamilton National bank, which had been raised from $31 to $3,100.

It is contended that he never attempted to raise any money on this certificate and that it was placed in the safe where William R. Houk, who is secretary of the realty company, found it and presented it to the bank. Unless Mr. Houk has shown this to his directors as evidence that he had their funds intact or has attempted to obtain something of value by presenting it, his friends contend that there is no criminal charge against him.

Had Authority From Father. There is also a rumor to the effect that he had signed the name of his father to some obligations, but in defending this it is insisted that authority was given him to do it and if such obligations are found there will be no criminal charges sustained on them if the father can prevent it.

Samuel Houk lives in Madison township, where he owns about 200 acres of good land. He is very active in the investigation of his son's affairs and is quoted as having said that he would make good any shortage that may be found. This he is amply able to do and the investigations that are being made today are for the purpose of arriving at any deficit that may exist.

Had Rise in Politics. Attorney Houk was made county chairman of the republican party at the fall convention and it is charged that for some time he has not been acceptable to certain leaders of the Taft element and that efforts to obtain his resignation have been made.

He declined to resign, but all authority has been invested in Judge B. W. Skelton, secretary, and the selection of Mr. Houk's successor has been left open for some time.

It has been rumored on the streets for some time that Mr. Houk was in financial entanglement and the denouement came yesterday when Noah Egley, candidate for joint senator from Allen and Adams counties, requested the removal of Mr. Houk on the ground that his financial dealings were open to question.

In the meantime two subpoenas had been issued asking him to appear before the grand jury and he paid no attention to either. A deputy sheriff was sent for him and waited at his office for some time and then went to the Houk home, where the wife permitted a thorough search of the premises. She denied any knowledge of his whereabouts.

During the afternoon she and her father-in-law appeared before the grand jury. Houk has been engaged in the practice of law for several years, but devoted a great deal of his time to real estate dealing and recently organized a German Realty company. His brother is a graduate of a local business college and he was named as secretary.

POLICE HAD TO INTERFERE

Colored Odd Fellows Have Strenuous Session at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 14.—Police interference in the national convention of Negro Odd Fellows today prevented delegates from fighting over the election of a grand master. The convention adjourned for six days without a master being chosen. E. H. Morris, of Chicago, head of the order, and Benjamin J. Davis, editor of a negro paper published here, were rival candidates. When time came for election of a grand master, Morris yielded the chair to Henry L. Johnson, register of deeds, Washington, and deputy grand master. Several ballots were taken without result. Morris, convinced that some of Johnson's rulings were endangering his chances, attempted to resume the chair. Johnson refused to yield and the convention was thrown into disorder.

Two policemen detailed at the hall to preserve order, forced Johnson to give way to Morris. The latter declared the convention adjourned. The arrests were made, although the police disarmed one delegate who drew a knife.

WILL APPEAL TO COURTS

Parents of La Valley Girl Want Tarring Party Fulfilled.

Norwalk, Ohio, Sept. 16.—Statements that Henry La Valley and wife, parents of Minnie La Valley, 19, who was turned and feathered and driven out of town, will appeal to the courts to have the perpetrators punished, were refuted today. Don Young, prosecuting attorney, said that unless complaint is made nothing will be done.

It was learned today that the tarring party, supposed to have consisted of women dressed as men, poured a bucket of paint on the nude body of the La Valley girl. It is said she is in Cleveland.

MISTAKEN FOR ROBBERS

Two Young Men Shot Down by Officer at Helper, Utah.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 15.—Brigham Taylor, 21, was killed and Arnold Headland, 19, was seriously wounded by E. B. Johnston, a former deputy sheriff, who mistook them for robbers at Helper, Utah, early today. Johnston, who killed "Gon" Plax, a desperado, several years ago, is held without bail. He says the boys acted suspiciously when he met them on a country road. Beard and Plax, it is said, had been without excuse.

COLONEL DOES FOOTBALL RUSH

Roosevelt Fights His Way Through the Crowds at Reno, Nevada.

SAYS HE'S SAYING IT TO HANDLE FREIGHT

Reno, Nev., Sept. 14.—When Col. Roosevelt arrived in Reno he was greeted by crowds that blocked the street. The colonel became separated from his escort and was obliged to make his own way to his automobile. He went at it like a football player and reached his car before the rest of his party.

Col. Roosevelt spoke in favor of repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act, and attacked the policy of both the republican and democratic parties in regard to the tariff. He repeated his charge that the republican "bosses" had "scuttled the ship" and said he had warned them that if they stole the republican nomination he would have a good deal to say.

"I'm saying it now," the colonel added as the crowd cheered.

Col. Roosevelt's appeal to the people of Nevada was made today when he passed through the state on his way to the Pacific coast. His principal address was in Reno. Since he left Spokane on Monday, the colonel has been traveling constantly except for a stay of a few hours in Portland, Ore., and brief stops at a few other points. Through Oregon, Idaho, Utah and Nevada he has been traveling as fast as the men at the throttle could speed the train, in an effort to keep up with the schedule which was mapped out before he left Oyster Bay. Most of the time he has been late and special trains have been arranged to make up for the loss.

The delays have been due largely to the fact that Col. Roosevelt was called upon to make more speeches than were on the program. When the colonel reaches San Francisco he will have a day's rest before leaving for the southwest. His week of hard campaigning has told on him and he showed signs of fatigue today although the hoarseness which troubled him at the beginning had disappeared.

SAY WILL IS COMPLIED WITH

Miss Julia Finney, 99 Years Old, Now Wants Share of Estate.

Denver, Col., Sept. 14.—Alleging that the unique will of the late Milton Jerome, of Chicago, which provided that no division of his $1,000,000 estate be made until there no longer existed possibility of further heirs to be born has been complied with, Mrs. Julia Finney, 99 years old, and Mrs. Helen A. Hanum, a few years her junior, residents of Syracuse, N. Y., are endeavoring in the district court here to compel a division of the property. John H. Denison, a Denver attorney, administrator of the Jerome estate, is named as defendant.

According to the petition of Mrs. Finney and Mrs. Hanum, Milton Jerome, a steel manufacturer, died in Chicago in 1886, leaving a number of relatives in Denver. He named as trustee John L. Jerome, a former official of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, who died in July, 1903.

Mrs. Finney and Mrs. Hanum set forth that they should be permitted to enjoy in their declining years the principal portion of the legacies since there exists no possibility that another heir may be born.

Mrs. Tonkinson's husband was elected clerk of the court four years ago, but died two weeks' later.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Conditions in Cuba are far from satisfactory to the state department and it was intimated today that the United States might intervene, at least, supervise the coming election. SUGGESTS A NEW JAIL

Four of the twelve indictments returned by the grand jury when it reported shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon were withheld from publication by order of Judge Edward O'Rourke, of the circuit court.

These will not be made public until the parties charged with crime are arrested and either in jail or under bond. It is known that certain transactions of Amos E. Houk were under investigation and it is also known that efforts made late yesterday afternoon to locate him were fruitless and whether there are any charges against him or not will not be known for the present.

No information was given out in the matter and only one instance was mentioned in which investigations had been made and no indictment returned. This was in the case of a barn burned at Arcola by incendiaries in which not sufficient evidence was obtainable.

Fort Wayne's Novel "Factory In the Air" Is the Only One of Its Kind In Indiana

Unique Shop in Schmitz Block Turns Out Thousands of Miniature Electric Lamps Which Go to All Parts of the World, and Work is All Done by Hand—A Glimpse Into an Interesting Institution.

HOUSANDS of people pass the north-west corner of Calhoun and Washington streets every day, and hundreds of people daily enter the Schmitz block, located at that place, yet it is safe to say that there is scarcely a person who passes that particular corner, or enters that particular building, aware of the fact that on the north side of the top floor is Fort Wayne's "factory-in-the-air."

And then every scores of people pass by the doors opening into this factory itself and they do not realize that it is one of the most interesting places in Fort Wayne; also one of the busiest manufacturing plants in the business district. It is a safe bet that many have gazed inside of the rooms, but were not interested enough to determine what was going on.

The concern is known to the business world, and is catalogued in the Fort Wayne directory, as the Fort Wayne Miniature Lamp works, and it is one of the new industrial institutions of the city. Strange as it may seem, however, not many Fort Wayne people know of its existence. If they have by chance heard of such a concern, they evidently failed to attach any importance to it, merely surmising that it is a place where small lamps are manufactured.

The fact is that right in the very heart of Fort Wayne's business district is located one of the most unique manufacturing enterprises of its kind in the United States, the only one of its kind in Indiana, and one of the top in existence. While it manufactures an article common to the trade, and in constant use from coast to coast, the manner in which the products are manufactured calls for considerable attention, and is a never-failing attraction to those who know what is going on within those two rooms.

Lamps Made by Hand.

Miniature electric lamps are in use every place. One sees them daily by the hundred on automobiles and in different business institutions, but not very many people ever stop to consider where they are made, or how. The little factory in the Schmitz block turns out miniature electric lamps in all imaginable shapes, of all voltage and candlepower, at the rate of 2,000 per day, and every bit of the work is done by hand.

Long tubes of glass, packages of copper wire and brass holders, made in this country, and filament wire coming from Germany, are received almost daily at the "factory-in-the-air," and are sent out after having been worked into tiny incandescent lamps, seen every day, everywhere. The product is the result of handwork.

The only machine-manufactured parts used in constructing the little globes are the brass bases which fasten into the machine, or flashlight, or anywhere the little lamps are used. The wiring, vacuum work, bulb-making, and everything else necessary in putting the finished product together, is done by the hands of skilled men and women.

While there are ten other institutions of the kind in the United States, the nearest to Fort Wayne is at Cleveland. Most of the others are in the eastern states.

There are numerous places about the state of Indiana where large electric lamps are turned out by the millions, but the work is all done by machinery, and the finished stock products are placed on the market.

The work done in the shop here, however, is for specialties, and the miniature globes are sold to the manufacturers of automobile accessories and flashlights. Those in charge of the company believe that better work is done by hand, and their belief is substantiated in the fact that there is an ever-increasing demand for the products. By making the lamps by hand a better product is turned out, and all trade appreciates anything of superior quality.

A Tardious Process.

All of the material used in manufacturing the lamps is made in this country except the filament wire, which comes from Germany. This is the fine wire which makes the bulb when the current is turned on. Wire, platinum, glass tubes and brass holders complete the list of parts used in manufacturing the lamps.

The glass used comes in long thin tubes, and the different shapes seen in the finished product are blown in the shop. The first work in the process of making the lamp is shaping the base using

DECATUR NEWS.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 14.—Robert E. Smith, 70, a civil war veteran, died suddenly yesterday afternoon. He took sick while at the furniture and undertaking establishment of Meyers, Scherer & Beavers, and died a few moments after being removed to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Murray Scherer, with whom he lived. The greater part of his life was spent on the farm south of Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. George Simmers and son, Harry Wilder, have gone to Monroeville to attend the reunion at the Simmers Lomestead today.

per wire and brass holders, made in this country, and filament wire coming from Germany, are received almost daily at the "factory-in-the-air," and are sent out after having been worked into tiny incandescent lamps, seen every day, everywhere. The product is the result of handwork.

The only machine-manufactured parts used in constructing the little globes are the brass bases which fasten into the machine, or flashlight, or anywhere the little lamps are used. The wiring, vacuum work, bulb-making, and everything else necessary in putting the finished product together, is done by the hands of skilled men and women.

While there are ten other institutions of the kind in the United States, the nearest to Fort Wayne is at Cleveland. Most of the others are in the eastern states.

There are numerous places about the state of Indiana where large electric lamps are turned out by the millions, but the work is all done by machinery, and the finished stock products are placed on the market.

As to a State Penal Farm.

The Indiana penal farm commission, created by the last legislature to investigate the desirability of establishing a state farm to which those convicted of misdemeanor might be sent and given employment rather than to house them in county jails, is preparing to make a tour of inspection to observe the workings of similar institutions elsewhere, and it will doubtless have an interesting report to make to the legislature which meets in January.

But a day or two ago The Sentinel printed a description of the experiences of the city of San Diego in a similar direction, in which it is declared that it had proven not only excellent as a reformatory institution, but had actually yielded a public revenue. It cannot be disputed that some practical provision for the utilization of the labor of the misdemeanants would be infinitely preferable to housing them in county jails with others of varying degrees of degradation, to loaf in idleness and to be fed at the public expense. But the question of profit and loss to the state or the county is not the chief consideration. If the modern idea that reformation and not punishment is the end to be achieved in the case of the person guilty of minor infraction of the law is correct, the penal farm would seem to be in all respects an admirable form in which to make the application of the principle in Indiana. So far as can be learned, the idea is working out to excellent advantage near Cleveland, Baltimore, Washington and other American cities where it is being tried. We hope to see Indiana act promptly in the matter of a penal farm if the research of the commission substantiates half the advantages claimed for those that are already in existence.

Levy for Garbage Disposal.

President Schroeder and a number of other members of the city council are to be commended for taking a declared stand against any levy of city taxes for next year that does not include a provision for the creation of a fund that will enable Fort Wayne to make adequate disposal of its garbage through a reduction system that will best meet the city's needs. However urgent necessity may be along other lines, it can in no degree surpass in importance this garbage question which has been a bugbear for years, and which has been shifted along by temporary expedients from time to time. The antiquated old pile now serving as a crematory has clearly outlived its usefulness and has demonstrated time and again its inefficiency in taking care of a work that must constantly grow heavier as the city expands. The Sentinel has no desire to either discourage or to deter other improvements in contemplation, but it insists that the matter of garbage disposal is one that ought not be deferred longer. Let there be a provision, by trimming elsewhere, if necessary, that will furnish the start of a fund to take care of this most important item within a very few years. To delay that start longer than the present seems to us to be most unwise.

A LARGE CONTRACT.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)
The movement launched at Indianapolis at a banquet tendered a body of visiting manufacturers of automobiles and accessories for the construction of a transcontinental road from San Francisco to New York, to be completed by April, 1915, and available for motor tours to the Panama exposition, seems a large contract, but $300,000 was pledged toward it on the spot, and the details of the plans by which the money is to be raised show that the promoters are well aware of the difficulties and are not daunted.

It is estimated that from ten to twelve millions might be secured by pledges from the manufacturers interested to set aside one-third of one percent of their gross receipts for three years, or one-fifth of one percent for five years, as a contribution toward the cost of material, figured at $5,000 a mile. The $300,000 pledged was in this form. Membership is a national highway association in two classes—one at $5 and one at $100. The latter to entitle the subscriber to a national highway button—is proposed for automobile owners.

If the cost of the material can be defrayed by these methods, it is argued that the countries through which the road would pass should bear the cost of construction under the direction of war department engineers. The total cost of the highway—material and all—being set at $25,000,000. Where states or counties have already built roads that would fit in they would be used for those sections.

The construction of such a highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific would be a good thing. Undoubtedly it will be done some day, whether it will be the result of the present movement or of state or national action. It would stimulate the construction of branch roads and give a decided impetus to the good roads movement throughout the country. The remarkable growth of motoring, particularly among the agricultural population, has increased the demand for safe highways. It may be too much to hope that the dream of the Indianapolis banquet will be realized, but it at least serves to stimulate interest, and thereby "has been the day when good roads will be the rule rather than the exception."

FROM POPULIST TIMES.

(Kansas City Star.)
It is interesting to observe that among the old-time Populist proposals that are now winning respectability is a modification of the sub-treasury plan. The object of the sub-treasury plan was to permit the farmer to borrow money on his crops at a small rate of interest. The proposal was that farmers might deposit in the sub-treasury cotton, wheat, corn, oats or tobacco and receive government notes up to $0 per cent of the value of the security.

Now all three party platforms are urging means to enable farmers to borrow money at less than the current rates paid to banks. The details of the contemplated plans, which are in existence in Europe, are explained by Mr. R. F. Yeakum, president of the Frisco System, in an article in the current issue of the World's Work.

Mr. Yeakum points out that the European farmer is able to borrow money on his land at low rates of interest through a co-operative system, by which all the land of the members becomes the security for individual loans. In addition he may borrow for current needs on his note at moderate rates from the rural credit banks.

These systems by which farmers virtually pool their credits have been in operation in Germany, France and other European countries for many years. They have been of great service in the agricultural development of those countries because they have enabled this work to be done at comparatively low cost.

With American public opinion aroused there is a good chance that some plan adopted to American conditions may be worked out in the near future.

"In the Last Analysis."
Cleveland Plain Dealer:—"Mayor Gaynor is head of the New York police. In the last analysis he is responsible for the shocking conditions now being uncovered to the world."

"Nervous Condition."
Boston Herald:—"Mayor Gaynor's course in reference to the police department, his curious semi-official utterances as to liberty of citizens and their relation to the police, have doubtless had something to do with the nervous condition of the force."

Philadelphia Inquirer:—"Mayor Gaynor owes it to himself to apologize to the newspapers and other forces which he persistently claimed were 'trying to embarrass him.'"

BACK TO NATURE.

(New York World.)

Bankers, merchants, manufacturers and railroad presidents almost unanimously predict a revival of prosperity which they say will be bottomed upon abundant crops.

We believe that this is the first time since Mark Hanna's day that we have had forecasts of prosperity that did not rest upon tariffs, subsidies, rebates, favor and sharp practice. It is all the more noteworthy, too, because most of these prophets of plenty accept as a matter of course the idea that there is soon to be an important political change at Washington.

Is it possible that some of the prosperity now discerned by the watchmen on the towers of legitimate business is to be traced to just laws and honest government in prospect? When we attribute our views to bountiful nature we may be more reluctant to worship the Dingies, Paynes, Aldriches and Smoots.

If cross, feverish, bilious and sick give delicious "Syrup of Figs."

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative physic should always be the first treatment given.

If your child isn't feeling well; resting nicely; eating regularly and acting naturally it is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged up with waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness.

When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or your little one has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, tongue coated; give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness.

SAGE TEA WILL

Darken the Hair

Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our grandmothers kept their hair dark, glossy and abundant by the use of a simple "Sage Tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of Sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

This preparation gives youthful color and beauty to the hair, and is one of the best remedies you can use for dandruff, dry, feverish, itching scalp, and falling hair. Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and you will be surprised at the quick results. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special agents, Meyer Bros. Co., Four D. Stores.

While the proceedings were started several weeks ago, they did not become a court record until now, when Judge Lawrence W. Halsey signed an order citing Mrs. White to show cause why certain parts of her complaint should not be stricken out as irrelevant and scandalous.

It is set forth in the complaint that the defendants represent an immense amount of capital in Milwaukee and in New York. The combined wealth of Mrs. Scammon and her sister, Mrs. Tuttle, is claimed, is estimated at $30,000,000 to $50,000,000, and they are said to own $1,000,000 worth of real estate.

Arthur G. White and Katherine N. White were married August 19, 1892, in this city. On December 13, 1899, White sued for a divorce, charging desertion and naming John C. Zartain as co-respondent. Mrs. White did not contest the suit, but in her present complaint she alleges that at the time the divorce was obtained, May 20, 1910, she was visiting in New York, but that she did not learn of the granting of the divorce until her return to Milwaukee.

Upon her return here, she asserts, White denied that a divorce was granted and wanted to live with her. Mrs.

White also charges that White's remarriage was illegal in that the wedding took place within a year after the divorce was granted.

Mrs. White charges that all of the members of her husband's family opposed her marriage, because she was possessed of only slender financial means and was not of the same exalted position that the defendants arrogated to themselves.

The Girl on the Courthouse Dome

To the Editor of The Sentinel: I want to thank you most heartily for sending me the communication which you received from an anonymous contributor concerning my letter to you which was published in The Sentinel last Saturday.

You will remember that I told about overhearing two Fort Wayne mothers talking about the high school girls. One of them was telling the other that she had found it impossible to induce her daughter to go back to school this year for the reason that the daughter couldn't keep up the pace in clothes and jewelry and society which is set by many of the other girls of the high school. You will remember, too, that she said she didn't think the teachers or the school authorities are at all to blame for the condition. And then the other woman asked her:

"Don't you think the mothers of the girls could do something about it?"

But just then their car came grinding around the corner and I didn't catch a word of the answer. I thought about it a good deal, though, and was still thinking about it when you sent the letter up to me. It has helped wonderfully to clear the atmosphere, but I find it clouding up again when I try to solve the question which the communication brings out. Here is the letter in full:

"To the Girl on the Court House Dome, via the Editor of The Sentinel: I read what you had to say on the high school girl question in Saturday's Sentinel, and I want to speak a few plain words to you on this matter. Mothers who have right principles and who give the care to their daughters that they should, will have enough influence over them to keep them in school whether they can dress as well as someone else or not. Besides, women of good taste do not wear much jewelry except on occasions of importance, such as a big reception or a private ball."

"This thing that mothers can't control their fifteen or sixteen year old daughters as you remarked in The Sentinel the other day makes me weary. I tell you that there are too many false standards nowadays. Now don't interrupt me, and say I don't appreciate young people, for I do. I have three daughters of my own, please remember, and I have had ample opportunity for experience as well as observation. I have never seen a consistent mother who practiced better than she preached who failed to influence her girls, and boys, too, along the paths of right living and high standards. And she doesn't need to be either rich or highly educated herself. In fact one of the best mothers I ever knew was a woman who supported a family by washing and ironing. But she instilled common sense ideas and moral principles into her girls and boys, and she had four of them, so they grew into self-supporting and honorable men and women. And they staid in school twelve years each, and the youngest one had a chance to go to college because the others could lend him help."

"Of course, if a girl has a vain and foolish mother, whose own ambition is to belong to a crowd and win the most of the prizes and top herself out a little gaudier than her next door neighbor, regardless of how so doing strains her husband's pocketbook, she will likely find her own self photographing in her daughter. That daughter will likely whine for the newest fads in dress and want an electric car to ride around in and plenty of money to spend on matinees and sweets. The next thing that mother knows her daughter is staying out of school to meet some equally foolish young man who ought to be putting in his hours in employment or study. I think it does mighty little good to preach. It's the example at home that counts. Why do you know that about one-half the parents lie to their children? No? Well, they do. O, they don't mean to, to be sure. They would be horrified to hear themselves accused of such an awful thing. But what else is it when fathers and mothers continually threaten things they never do, or continually misrepresent matters to their children? They may not tell outright lies, but there's a lack of calling things by their right name, and the impression that Jane and Jerry will come out all right, even if they are clever enough to cheat in their lessons, or hoodwink their parents, or play false to their friends. Yes, indeed, the more I observe and the longer I live the more convinced I am that trouble is in the homes and not the schools. If I wanted to pick a quarrel with the schools of our city I would howl about a curriculum that compels a studious and bright child to get from two to four lessons at home every evening because there is not time enough during school hours to learn them in."

Thus ends the communication. The writer of it says that I said that "mothers can't control their fifteen or sixteen-year-old daughters." Oh, dear, no. I never said that. I was merely repeating what I heard some mothers say. And the more I study the communication the more I think there's a good deal to it. And this leads me to propose a splendid and practical way to begin to wend our way out of the trouble. Here it is:

Let us take it for granted that a good many mothers, then, need training in the matter of teaching and leading their daughters along right paths. What do you say to teaching these mothers how to train those daughters? How? Make it compulsory. We hear an awful lot of talk these days that the public school buildings remain empty and unused too much of the time—from June to September—a condition which should not be. Now, then, if we could have a new law compelling mothers to attend a summer school of instruction in the art of training their daughters, I think this would be an excellent solution of the problem of using the schoolhouses during the summer and also solve the problem of the girl herself. At the close of this summer term for mothers, it would be necessary, of course, that they pass an examination and receive a mother's certificate of fitness before their daughter could enroll in the schools, just as a teacher must pass an examination to determine her fitness to train the girl during that portion of the time in which she is out of her mother's sight. Thus, you see, the school and home would work hand in hand for a better new generation of citizens and citizenesses. I haven't dragged the boys into this suggestion, but if it works out all right with the mothers and daughters we might conduct a separate department for the papas to receive instructions concerning the training of their boys.

My sympathies, though, are partly with the mothers of the girls. Now, you take a farmer, for instance. When his farm gets a little run down, he repairs the fences and the barns, he doctors his soil until it is as good as new, and he removes the weed patches from the fence corners and in every way he tries to keep up the place. The man who would have a splendid apple orchard must keep pretty busy to prune and spray and fertilize the older trees to keep them in good shape. When a town-house begins to look a little dingy, we paint it or put on a new roof or train vines over the dilapidated porch or otherwise try to hide the fact that it is getting old.

Now, then, about mamma when she begins to grow old? Doesn't she want to stay attractive, too?

Are we to rob her of the privilege of the use of cosmetics, of attractive clothes and diamonds and a lot of other things which she may have thought very foolish in the days gone by?

Ah, but if it could only stop there! But it doesn't.

We are all imitators. Daughter takes her tip from mamma, and the funniest part of it is that the ones who need artificial decoration the least are the ones who get it the most.

But the subject is much too deep for me.

I pass it on to Laura Jean Libby, Lillian Russell, Billie Burke and Edward Bok.

From THE GIRL ON THE COURT HOUSE DOME.

P. S.—Please don't expect me to say anything more on this subject. The fact is that I am so tickled over the fact that I don't have to worry about clothes and paint and powder that I might sometimes say things which would show I am just a little prejudiced.

FAIR CROWD FOR THE CLOSING DAY

CHECK UP RECEIPTS

Bob Burman and his speed outfit attracted a fair crowd to the Driving park this afternoon to witness the windup of the Great Fort Wayne fair of 1912.

The cars going to the park and the people passing through the gate indicated that the attendance would be up to the usual Saturday figure.

Most of the exhibits were removed during the afternoon as they held no attraction after the racing program was started and there was no reason to keep them in place and permission was given the owners to withdraw them as a number had to make shipments in order to reach their next stands.

Burman had his big new Benz car out trying it around the track and is proud of the great machine with which he expects to smash all speed records made in the history of automobile driving.

The car is not as big as the one he had here during his race in July but the motor is the most powerful he has ever tried to control and in the exhibition of the afternoon he was simply trying it out to get accustomed to it as he has only driven it in one race.

Officials of the Fair association were busy this afternoon checking up accounts but they will be unable for several days to tell whether the exhibition has been conducted at a profit. Until all obligations are paid the balance can not be struck.

They know already that the fair has not drawn as many people as it has in former years with weather conditions as favorable as they have been during the week. In quarters where it is desired to have a bar located on the grounds the falling off in attendance is charged to the absence of intoxicants.

Allowance was made in preparing the exhibition for the fact that the association could not count on the $2,500 that has heretofore been paid for the liquor privilege and the premium offerings were not as large as they have been in former years. There was also a decrease in the receipts for concessions much of the space reserved for them was not disposed of.

All of the effects will be removed from the grounds tomorrow and the office again established in the court house where all settlements will be made.

WILL PROVIDE ATTORNEY.

Virginia Brooks to Assist in Defense of Frances Ford.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Miss Virginia Brooks will obtain an attorney to defend Frances Ford or Mrs. Ethel Parker, as she is best known, on the charge of murdering John Messmaker at the Foss dive in West Hammond. This step was decided on by Miss Brooks when the Ford woman appeared before Coroner Hoffman, who is investigating Messmaker's death. Miss Brooks advised the woman to stand on her constitutional rights and refuse to testify before the coroner's jury. The coroner wishes to confront the woman with statements contradicting her confession.

The woman appeared before County Judge Owens yesterday to answer a charge of being accessory to the murder of Messmaker and the case was continued until Sept. 23.

WILLIAM WOOD, INDICTED WOOL TRUST HEAD, WAS ONCE A WOOL MILL HAND, BUT HE HAS FORGOTTEN.

Boston, Sept. 14.—William M. Wood is a strange character.

Head of the iniquitous wool trust, he has long been an exponent of labor-oppressing capitalism. He has recently been indicted for alleged conspiracy to "place" dynamite in Lawrence during the textile strike, in order to injure the cause of his own workers.

And yet William M. Wood himself sprang from the same class that he has so bitterly oppressed.

Little more than twenty years ago William M. Wood was slaving in a wool factory in New Bedford, Mass. He was only fifteen years old, and to make a bare living he had to work over a loom something like fifteen hours a day.

The life story of Wood is a romance. Wood's father came with his bride to Edgartown, a little village on the shore of Nantucket Island, forty years ago. He was a Portuguese, from the Azores, and could not speak a word of English.

At Edgartown Wood took a job piloting a little two-by-four coasting vessel. During the five years that Wood sailed this channel William was born. Soon after his birth the Wood family (whose name was really not Wood at all, but an unpronounceable Portuguese name which they had discarded) went to school until he was fifteen, and had been the high school. But the family was poor. He had a brother and two sisters younger than himself. His father was ill.

So William went into the mills. He got a job at the Wamsutta factories. It paid him, it is said, $3 a week. For three years he held that job.

During this time he learned to hate the work, with all its oppression and its lack of decent pay, and one day he told the boss he had got a "good job." It was in a New Bedford bank.

For a while Wood stayed with the banking people, learning all the witchery of checks and drafts and balances. And then one day he went back to the woolen business.

But not as a loom boy. This time it was as a salesman.

For several years, all over the country, Wood sold woolens.

He sold more woollen goods to the square mile than any one had ever sold before.

And the upshot was he was brought to the home office to manage all the salesmen.

About this time his factory, through mismanagement, was in a bad way. Frederick Ayer, who gathered his dollars out of the bottom of a sarsaparilla bottle, had put a million in this mill. His million was fast dropping out of sight.

William Wood, who by this time was engaged—or almost—to Ayer's daughter, said:

"Give me a million more and I'll save the other million and make a lot besides."

And he did!

Out of that bankrupt woolen concern he has created one of the greatest trusts the world. It is rated as being worth $75,000,000, and Wood owns a large part of it, and controls it altogether.

He married Miss Ayer, has a young son and daughter, keeps so many automobiles and private secretaries that he doesn't know just how many, and has three country homes and a town house in the exclusive Back Bay district of Boston.

And how has Wood built a granite-hard trust on the foundation of a wobbly woolen concern? By paying the maximum for his mechanical equipment and the minimum for his human equipment. In other words, by depriving all but Robert W. Graffe and Hazel Bello Connert were not afraid.

They obtained a marriage license late yesterday in spite of the double hoodoo and rose above superstition long enough to have the nuptial knot tied. The groom is a son of Fred Graffe, for a number of years clerk at police headquarters.

COMMITTEE MAY ELECT CHAIRMAN

Chairman A. E. Houk Was Formally Removed by

removed as county chairman of the republicans three days ago. Mr. Houk was asked to resign, and later was told by District Chairman Vesey that he had been removed.

Mr. Vesey today refused to state definitely why Mr. Houk had been removed. He admits that matters were in such a condition that the court of public opinion demanded his removal, but adds that as a chairman of the republican county committee he did excellent and untiring work.

"I do not know anything definitely against Mr. Houk," said Mr. Vesey. "I have heard no more about his affair than others have heard through rumor about the business district. Under the law neither the chairman nor secretary have control of funds except to direct their expenditure and distribution."

"At the meeting last night the executive board of the county organization declared the office of county chairman vacant. I have the power to appoint a new chairman, but do not know at this time whether or not I will exercise this right, and believe that the committee will be allowed to elect its own head."

Progressives Are Busy

C. M. Preble, chairman of the Allen county progressives, with Louis N. Littman as assistant, is attempting to perfect the county organization and has numerous other political clubs and societies which it is hoped will further the interests of Theodore Roosevelt in this territory. On Tuesday night a meeting will be held at headquarters for the purpose of organizing a Roosevelt club. Announcement is also made that the railroad men of the city are perfecting the organization of a club to be known as the Railroad Men's Bull Moose club.

Beginning next Thursday night one ward and one country township will be organized each night. On Saturday of next week a mass meeting of Bull Moose will be held in the assembly room of the court house, at which time an address will be delivered by Clifford Jackson, progressive nominee for attorney general.

POTATOES ARE ROTTING.

Create Stench and Health Authorities Are After Commissioners.

Complaint was received from the health board of DeKalb county today by the county commissioners here that a ditch on the county line had overflowed and several crops of potatoes had rotted in the ground.

Complaint was made to the health authorities by Ed Yoder and the overflow was charged to the fact that the ditch is stopped up and does not carry off the water. The stench is said to be so strong that the county commissioners were advised they were not responsible for it, and they took no action.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire in this manner to thank our friends and neighbors and especially the Ladies' Auxiliary B. R. T. also members of B. R. T. and all railroad men for their kindness and sympathy shown, also for the beautiful floral offerings at the death of our beloved husband and father.

Billie Burke on Hairdressing

(By Billie Burke.)

The first word: "Never mind the fashion. Dress your hair becomingly."

I see by the hair shop windows and the shape of the new fall hats that the elaborate coiffure is still to be worn this fall and winter.

"What has the shape of the hat got to do with it?" you ask. A great deal; hair-dressing always follows the shape of the hat, and with the big crowns that one sees in all the new hats, one must dress one's hair in a way to fill them out.

Many young women follow every vagary of fashion in regard to the hair, and regardless of the fact that they may have round faces and low foreheads, they will this year bring their braids and twists forward clear over their foreheads, and allow little curls which peep from under to reach their eyebrows. It will not matter to them whether their heads are large or small; they will pile on fake hair because it is the fashion.

Many women look well with their hair arranged elaborately, but it usually adds ten years to one's face, no matter how becoming it is. As a rule the simpler one combs one's hair, the younger it will make one look, although many women can in their later years improve upon their youthful style of hairdressing.

Coiffures should grow more formal as one grows older, and after one turns gray nothing but the most elaborate hair-dressing of puffs and soft braids should be used.

Don't I beg of you, if your hair is turning gray, think it will look well with flying tendrils and wisps about your face. These may be all right on a young girl, but they make a woman over forty look like a picture of the Witch of Endor.

I think one's hair shows age sooner than any other part of one with the exception of the hands. Even if your hair does not grow gray, it becomes limp and stringy. It does not seem to have that life and electric energy which makes it fluff and curl about a young face.

The girl whose hair grows pretty around her face is fortunate, indeed, and the one who has the "five points of Venus," as little points of hair at the ears, the temples and the one in the middle of the forehead are called, should always comb her hair so that they will see from my picture that I wear my hair very simply, as it curls naturally about my face, and I shall hate the day when I have to "tidy up" the stray locks.

It will be seen by the pictures which I have drawn, of some of the very latest coiffures, that to be in style you must wear either coils and braids from the nape of your neck clear over your forehead. The ears are covered and in many cases ornaments are placed just show. There is, however, a little superstition about the girl whose hair grows in a deep point in the center of her forehead. It is that she will be a young widow.

A great many women of individuality wear their hair always in the same way. Mrs. Langtry has always worn her's in that soft, low coil at the nape of the neck which was so much worn by every English woman when she was the professional beauty of England. This way of combing the hair sets off the line from one's temple to one's shoulder perfectly.

Berhardt has always worn her hair in a tangle over her eyes and about her ears. She did this to conceal the thinness of her face. Ellen Terry has always affected a low hairdressing, with a big black bow. This sets off her blond coloring, and brightens the gold of her hair. You above them: A bright girl will look at these pictures, and seating herself before her mirror, can arrange her hair so that it will have the same contour as these drawings, and yet she will give an original twist to her hair that is for her only. She can always remember one thing, however, even if she wears her hair very differently—she will not look out of style if she keeps her hair clean and fluffy, and dresses it becomingly.

Just one last word: If a woman's hair is her crown of glory, it behooves her to keep it bright and shiny, as well as properly placed.

MODERN "JOAN OF ARC" IN POLITICS CLEANS UP CORRUPT AND VICE RIDDEN CITY.

Virginia Brooks Threatened to "Reform West Hammond Wipe It Off the Map." West Hammond is Still on the Map, But Its a Chastened and Subdued Town.

VIRGINIA BROOKS AND THE "HOUSE OF MYSTERY" IN WEST HAMMOND.

spirit in the town, and now the laws are rigidly enforced. Miss Brooks is very modest about it—and very human. With her soft voice and quiet manner she made a charge of murder against Frankie Ford. Then her eyes filled with tears. "Poor thing!" she murmured. "I must buy Frankie some nice clothes, so she can make a better appearance in court."

MISS BROOKS' OWN STORY.

(By Virginia Brooks.) I have been living for the last two years in West Hammond, and it needs no imagination to name it the "City of Dreadful Night."

Two years ago I started out to find why my taxes were steadily increasing, while the property itself, from which I derived my only income, was steadily deteriorating.

It was a shock to a girl of twenty, with little knowledge of life, to face conditions as I found them in West Hammond—a city which has more vice in proportion to its size than any other in America. While slavery was rampant, and when the poor girls, herded like cattle in these unspeakable dens, which were a part of almost every saloon, became drunk-sodden and diseased, they were made to disappear and new ones with fresh faces and strong bodies took their places.

At first I tried interesting men and women in the place. I learned Polish to be able to talk to the larger proportion of the inhabitants. I finally succeeded in electing a mayor, but his hands were tied by the vicious police system and the scandalous condition of the justice court.

I was threatened with death and other things, but I persisted in the work. From being interested in its from a selfish point of view I came to see it as a battle for the betterment of humanity.

Many older heads could not conceive of the sordid villainy of which I told them. They seemed to think my accusations were the wild fancies of an excitable girl. The newspapers were lukewarm. Even at the office of the state attorney they could not conceive that what I told them had facts to back it. At last suspicious deaths in Henry Foss dive and saloon and shocking things which happened in other places, corroborated my stories. I took my case to the county board and then within two weeks attorneys Wilson and Johnson had the federal authorities, the United States marshal, the state's and county attorneys and the city detectives working on my cases.

Another great addition to my fighting regiment was Mrs. Bass, a society and club woman of Chicago. She put herself and her motor at my disposal. I have found it much easier to combat vice from a motor car and all that it means, than on foot and alone.

After the death of John Messmaker, who was hurriedly taken from Foss' dive to the hospital, we procured a confession from Ethel Parker, as to the way he died, and within the last few days swooped down on the place occupied by "the king of the West Hammond dives." Such squalid degradation was a surprise even to the men whose life's business it has been to hunt crime in all out-of-the-way places.

During this raid we found enough evidence to indict Foss under the white slavery act, which will hold him until the charge of murder can be placed against him. The arrest of other dive-keepers followed and for the present there is not a house of ill-fame or disreputable saloon in West Hammond.

This is my first real victory. After two years of hard work and many disappointments, I can at last see light ahead, and the men back of me in the attorney's office of Cook county say they will see me through.

It has been a hard fight and a bitter one, but it shows that one girl with right on her side can successfully combat all the emissaries of the devil.

BOTH ARE UNDER ARREST.

Woman for Bigamy, Man for Knowingly Wedding Wife of Another.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Stella Ruth Carabine, 24 years old, an alleged bigamist, was arrested last night on complaint of her first husband, James E. Carabine, while seated on the front steps of her new home on the west side, awaiting the arrival of Oscar Galley, said to be her second husband. Later Galley was arrested on a charge of knowingly marrying another man's wife.

According to Carabine, who is 42 years old, he married Mrs. Carabine six years ago. While working as a waitress in a hotel she met Galley and married him, according to the story told by Carabine. She is said to have told Galley that she obtained a divorce. For two months after her marriage to Galley, Mrs. Carabine, according to the story of her first husband, lived a dual life. Both of her husbands were railroad men and she is reported to have divided her time between the two.

SOUTHERN COAST HIT.

Equinoctial Storm is Severe About Mobile Region.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 14.—The equinoctial storm that struck the coast last night and threatened to do serious damage to this city had abated this morning. While conditions are unsettled it is believed the disturbance has spent itself as far as Mobile is concerned. The small river steamer National was sunk early this morning and the government dredge Barnard, which assisted in raising the Maine in Havana harbor, dragged her anchor for a quarter of a mile but was not damaged. The Cedar Street Methodist church was blown down.

MOOSE HAVE BANQUET.

Pleasant Social Event Held at Hal Last Evening.

The members of the Order of Moose, Pioneer lodge, No. 100, had a most delightful social event last evening at their hall, the occasion being a banquet, and it was largely attended. It was a sort of an informal affair, but proved enjoyable in all its features. The event is one of the many of a similar sort that the social committee will give during the fall and winter. Pioneer lodge, No. 100, is growing in membership wonderfully.

WOULD LABEL TREES IN PARKS

Board Considering Plan to Aid in Educating the Children.

GIVEN MORE LAND

A plan to label the trees and bushes in the largest parks of the city that the children may become educated in learning the various varieties and species was suggested to the board of park commissioners this morning by Professor Dorn, and the board has instructed Forester Getz and Secretary Steis to investigate the cost of such a proceeding.

The board this morning was given the title by the Beaver heirs to the acre strip of land along the west side of Broadway, just south of the Bluffton Road. This strip, upon which formerly stood the Beaver chapel, and another strip now belonging to Mrs. Eickle, will probably be incorporated into Foster park. Mrs. Eickle has been asked to give the land to the board, and she is considering the matter. The abstract for the Beaver land covers 81 closely written pages and is valued at $75. The Dreilbeis Abstracting firm donated it to the city.

The board accepted two large birds of unknown species from Emmet Martin. The birds to be placed in Lawton park until the park Zoo is started.

The board of works is to be asked for permission to erect a barn for the forestry department on North Calhoun street from the lumber in the Parham warehouse, in Lakeside park.

A request was made to the board from George H. Crouse that St. Mary's avenue be made into a boulevard for its entire length. The street is 66 feet wide and is to be paved next year. Under a boulevard system a central parkway of 14 feet could be allowed. The matter will be considered.

The park board wishes it understood that suggestions or complaints from any resident of the city will be gladly listened to at any meeting of the board. The board meets regularly on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

E. E. Yarnelle, the new member of the board succeeding Oscar W. Tresselt, was given the oath of office this morning and attended his first meeting.

his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tinsley, for a few days, left today for Mississippi, where he will attend the state university. On Thursday evening Mrs. Tinsley invited a company of young people to spend the evening with her son. A merry time was enjoyed.

One of the hostesses of the week was Miss Edith Michaels, of South Harrison street, who was assisted by Miss Edna Steck in entertaining a company of young people. Prizes in playing games were won by Misses Vivian Drew and Hilda Plattner and Messrs. Percy Hoffer and Jack Hiveman. There were present the Misses Stella Michaels, Edna Tarman, Marie Newman, Ruth McDevitt, Edna Brinkroger, Dorothy Essig, Bernadette Streby and Messrs. Monroe Gordon, Charles Gill, Andrew Lee, Harry Gill, Carl Babb, Clifford Gordon, Herbert Gaskill, Otto Martella, Russell Holtbe, Fred Clepper.

A surprise party at the home of Charles Rempis, 502 East Leith street, on Tuesday evening was given in honor of Hugo Koepf. Progressive pedo and other games were enjoyed and then a delicious supper was served. Prizes in the games were won by Miss Flossie DeLong, Miss Rose DeLong and Messrs. Walda Kayser and Fred Bloemer. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rempis and son, Arthur, Misses Grace Butler, Rose DeLong, Flossie DeLong, Dorothy DeLong, Edith Rempis and Messrs. Leonard Newport, Hugo Koepf, Roy McCormick.

Grafte-Connett.

A quiet wedding at the Cathedral this morning at 7 o'clock was that of Miss Hazel B. Connett, daughter of Mrs. Emma Dykeman, corner of Eby and Brookline avenues, and Mr. Robert W. Grafte, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grafte, of West Berry street. Rev. John Quinlan officiated at the mass. Miss Verna Grafte and Mr. Tom Grafte were the attendants. Only the immediate relatives were present. The bride is a capable and intelligent young woman with a very pleasing manner and lovely disposition. Mr. Grafte is a young man of ability and excellent habits and is employed in the transformer department of the Electric works. The bride and groom have gone for a few days' trip. Mrs. Frank Kolker sang during the marriage service.

Hartup-Herold.

Miss Helen Herold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Herold, of 810 Organ avenue, and Mr. Elva Hartup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Hartup, were married in Kalamazoo, Mich., on Sept. 5 and are now at home with the bride's parents. The bridegroom's father is proprietor of the Cedarside hotel, at Crooked lake, Angola. The romance of the bride and groom began a year ago when the bride was taking an outing at Crooked lake and met the young man she has now married. The bride was supposed to be taking her vacation this summer at Kalamazoo, but the young couple planned a wedding instead and then came home and told of it. The bridegroom is employed by the Wabash railroad.

Lee-Wilkinson.

Miss Bertha Vesta Wilkinson, of Rivermet avenue, left Fort Wayne early this morning and joined Clifford S. Lee at Wabash and both went to St. Joseph, Mich., where they were quietly married this afternoon. A very few of the most intimate friends of the couple knew they were to be married in the near future and the announcement will probably not be a great surprise except that the ceremony was performed earlier than had been anticipated. The bride has lived all her life in Fort Wayne and is the youngest daughter of Thomas A. Wilkinson, for many years head of the police department of one of the divisions of the Nickel Plate railroad and later a deputy sheriff of Allen county. The bride is a remarkably handsome young woman with a wide circle of acquaintances and is very capable in her home. Mr. Lee is assistant secretary of the Indiana Manufacturers' and Shippers' association and made his headquarters for some time in Fort Wayne, where he became acquainted with his bride. Before becoming connected with the association he was a political writer on the staff of the Indianapolis Star and has an extended acquaintance all over the state. He has made many friends during his stay in Fort Wayne.

TO CLEAN WHITE VEILS.

White veils are so much in vogue that women may find it useful to know how to do them up successfully at home, as they are sometimes apt to be roughly handled in the public laundry.

First make a solution of white soap or a lather of good soap powder. Let the veil simmer in it for a quarter of an hour. Squeeze in warm water and soap till it is clean; then rinse in cold water slightly blue.

Pour boiling water on a tablespoonful of starch; run the veil through this and clear by slapping it. Pin it out on a cloth or cushion very evenly by the edges to dry.

The Theatre

IS SAME POPULAR GEO. SIDNEY

Attracts Large Audiences to the Majestic Theater—Last Performance Tonight.

A decided personal hit is being made this week at the Majestic theater by that chubby little comedian, George Sidney, in the big musical comedy surprise, "Busy Izzy." Mr. Sidney is surrounded by a capable cast and a large chorus who very ably assist the star in keeping the audience in a fit of laughter.

The dialogue of the play is amusing and the situations are laugh-provoking throughout. The chorus is pretty and well gowned and sing a number of songs of the tingly kind that are sure to be much in vogue many weeks after the present engagement, which closes this evening.

OLLIE MACK COMING.

Will be at Majestic for Three Days in "Casey Jones."

"Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone"—that is Ollie Mack's motto; not new, but nevertheless apropos for any individual who is not deaf, dumb and blind, and who cannot help laugh at the musical fun frolic, "Casey Jones," which opens at the Majestic theater on Monday, Sept. 16, under direction of Rowland & Clifford.

This merry comedy with musical attachments has a well defined plot, depicting incidents in the hazardous existence of Casey Jones, the intrepid engineer of the Frisco mail, with now and then a tinge of the melodramatic and spectacular being in evidence, still at all times working along lines admirably adapted to exploit the funmaking ability of those clever comedians, Mack and Kearney.

As a fun-creating duo they rank high in the theatrical firmament and it would be difficult to imagine a better combination, the different methods of these funny men contrasting admirably—they have the knack of making people laugh, and when an audience is once started they keep them in a constant state of hilarity with the irresistible brand of humor they display.

The scenic effects deviate from the usual run of musical offerings, inasmuch as there are startling scenic surprises and novel electrical displays introduced that have additional interest for the spectator.

A "beauty chorus" has been selected with great care; the girls are pretty, gowned handsomely, besides being able to sing and dance effectively, and Virgil Bennett, who staged the musical numbers, pronounced it one of the best of its kind that he had ever rehearsed.

Mr. Bennett, it will be recalled, staged the musical successes at the Princess and Ziegfeld theaters in Chicago for years and absolutely original treatment of the ensemble and choruses is promised.

The company supporting the comedians consists of artists of long standing in the farce comedy line of work, including Miss Marcia Harris, a noted character comedienne formerly with Lew Fields in the "Never Homes."

"TEN NIGHTS IN A BAR ROOM"

Revival of Popular Old Play at the Majestic Theater Next Week.

"And a little child shall lead them." So sayeth the scripture. And it has come about that the greatest undertakings of man or woman have been gained by the small velvet pressure of a tiny hand. In the play, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," which comes to the Majestic theater next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the man in question, namely, Joe Morgan, feels the pressure of that little hand, hears the call of the gentle little voice, saying, "Daddy come home;" but he heeds not and he cannot resist it. The scripture also says, "Let there be light," but there was no light for Joe Morgan. There was nothing but murky blackness—years of the most dismal purgatory in the realm of a saloon. Instead of the clean pine floor his feet shuffled amid the sawdust, stained by the overturned glasses of whisky with a mixture of the foulest tobacco. Rum had ruined his heart and therefore he heeded not that small voice of conscience while his family waited for their daily bread. All that occupied his brain was the insane idea of the absorption of liquor. The ruin of Joe Morgan touches one of the greatest morals and one of the greatest lessons that the world has ever known. You will do well to see this play and to have your children see it. For by so doing you will present to the new generation an object lesson.

no substitution in any of the many gowns in her production. When Miss Suratt entered the theatrical business it was the practice of the managers to use satin for silk, cotton flannels for velvets, machine-made lace and other inexpensive articles which would not now be tolerated in a first-class production for an instant. At the sion to vindicate her judgment, and with these criticisms all carefully preserved for reference, she carried her argument for correct and costly dress to the managers. When told that her ideas were foolish, she displayed the newspaper clippings. After many hard fought battles she was able to have her managers supply her the best afforded in the sartorial markets.

You Need "Drag" Then Ability If You Are Going on the Stage.

Daughter of Famous Theatrical Man, Who is Some Actress, Advises Against Going on Stage, No Matter How Much Talent You Have, Unless There's Someone Backing You.

ALICE BRADY.

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—Don't go on the stage, girls, unless you have a "drag."

Alice Brady is an example and that's her advice. This is her second season, and she is skipping about the boards in the role of Pitti-Sing, in "The Mikado," a thrilling Hebe in "Pinafore" and getting in the limelight generally. Talent and ability had a great deal to do with this. So had Miss Brady's personal appearance. But back of all was "Wm. A. Brady, Limited." Wm. A. being her father, and William cut some ice as a theatrical manager.

In the figurative language of the day, she had a "drag."

When Alice Brady was asked, "Should young girls go on the stage?" she attempted to escape by saying, "Well, it depends."

"Depends on whether you have talent, of course."

"Oh, yes" (doubtfully).

"Of course you must have ability?"

"Oh, yes" (still more doubtfully).

A New Principle in Complexion Treatment

(From Society World.) Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a permanent soggy, sticky film which interferes with eliminative action and makes the skin sensitive and pasty. There is an application—micro-fine wax—which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless, it contains active ingredients which remove by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of sebum, as well as unhealthy matter in the pores. Thus it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion, difference in this respect from cosmetics. The result is a perfectly natural and healthy young complexion. Micro-fine wax is procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient). It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

The correct principle in the treatment of wrinkles is to tighten the skin, which naturally grows out the lines. A face bath, remarkably effective in this direction, may be made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered axolite in 1/2 pint witch hazel.

A PLAY DEALING WITH THE DIVORCE QUESTION.

"The Penalty" is a new play having for its theme the divorce question. This is a little comedy mixed in with a story that starts in a serious strain and continues along that line, increasing in intensity till the final climax. In the story a son starts out to defend the character of his divorced mother, only to learn the truth and to find the man. Throughout the story the audience is led to wondering just how the courtship of a young man and daughter of a wealthy society woman is to turn out. When the final curtain drops it ends the play without the stereotyped "and they lived happily ever after." The company which will be seen in "The Penalty" at the Majestic theater soon has been selected for their ability, skill and experience.

REFORM IN STAGE DRESSING.

Miss Valaska Suratt, the singing comedienne, who appears in the Messrs. Shuberts' New York Casino musical production, "The Kiss Waltz," is one of the post particular dressers on the American stage. Nor is her demand in this respect confined to herself alone, but to the individual members of her company and the chorus as well, a fact that is attested to by any manager for whom she has ever played. During the rehearsal of a production she spends a great deal of her time in the wardrobe room with the costume makers, and it is the surest thing imaginable that there is

THREE CHARTER MEMBERS OF OLD BAND MEET FOR FIRST TIME IN MANY YEARS.

Henry P. Scherer, Mat Backes, Albert E. Melching.

While the reception committee appointed to receive Governor Thomas R. Marshall when he visited the Fort Wayne fair was waiting for a delayed train, three charter members of the Fort Wayne City band, one of the first musical organizations of the city, met for the first time in many years. They are Henry P. Scherer, former mayor of Fort Wayne, Mat Backes, boiler shop foreman of the Washington D. C. terminal Railroad company, and Albert E. Melching, former sheriff of Allen county. A discussion growing out of the presence of a band that was present reminded the trio of their former musical affiliations and led back to the old band when all were associated together.

Mr. Scherer kept up his band connections longer than any of the others and after they had forsaken music for other pursuits in life he remained a band and orchestra member and it is only recently that he has retired.

Mr. Backes left Fort Wayne in 1894, and since that time most of the music that has entered his daily life is the ringing of the hammers in the boiler shops and Mr. Melching is now a member of the undertaking firm of Knaehn & Melching.

The Fort Wayne City band was organized in 1874 and numbered among its charter members Philip Keintz, Fred Reinecke, Frederick Goebel, Rupert Wagner, Ernest Spiegel and Ben Rekers.

TEMPLE THEATER

Temple's New Bill Headed by Thos. Q. Seabrooke, Late Comic Opera Star of "The Isle of Champagne," and "A Chinese Honeymoon."

To the Temple Monday comes Thos. Q. Seabrooke in a monologue that is scoring the hit of his career. Mr. Seabrooke was late comic opera star of "The Isle of Champagne" and "A Chinese Honeymoon," and is too well known in this city to need an introduction to theatergoers; suffice to say Temple patrons have a real treat in store for them. Mr. Seabrooke is the highest salaried single act ever booked to this city.

Charles A. Loder, the well known German dialect comedian, who has many successes to his credit, is now appearing in vaudeville, presenting a high-grade of character sketch work. Mr. Loder's performance in the farce comedy playlet, "The Night Doctor," is conceded to be one of the best refined classy comedy hits in vaudeville. The above artist is not a stranger to theater patrons, having for over twenty years been starred and featured with some of the big musical comedy successes of this country, as well as Australia and New Zealand, playing the principal roles in "Oh, What a Night," "The Isle of Bong-Bong" and "The Prince of Pilsen."

Another excellent feature on the bill will be La Graciosa, in a gorgeous spectacular transformation novelty, "Visions in Fairyland." The act is one of the season's biggest novelties and is the hit of the bill this week at Ekith's, in Toledo.

Connolly Sisters, late stars of several big New York productions, are on the bill in a singing and dancing offering. Mabelle Rother and Clifton Anthony

BASEBALL ATHLETICS

KALAMAZOO FINE NEW OUTFIELDER LEAGUE PROSPECT IN SECOND GAME

Talk About Putting It in Clarence Centlivre to Make Central League Looks
Mighty Good.

GOOD BALL TOWN—NOT ROOTERS ARE COMING

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 14.—No support—no baseball: is the way in which the local management of the Southern Michigan team view the situation at the present time, and as a result it is extremely doubtful if this city will be represented in the old circuit next season.

President Ryder stated this morning that unless sufficient funds were raised for this fall drafting and sale of players, that Kalamazoo baseball was a thing of the past so far as the present management is concerned. Mr. Ryder said: "There has been some talk of the Kalamazoo club taking a franchise in the Central league, but this is all supposition. A team that will not support a team in a sand lot league cannot hold up a nine in fast company."

Although Kalamazoo is one of the largest towns in the league, the attendance at the games has been even smaller than in Adrian on several occasions and the poor support has made management so far behind that they do not see the way clear to take up the helm again.

Wagner, Becker, Pipp and Archer were mentioned and although the quartet are all fast men, it is not probable that they would bring enough on the market, to get the team on its feet.

The difficulty that faces the Kalamazoo officials is not the only problem that will have to be solved before the South Michigan league can get on its feet. The Central league is re-elected but will withdraw from the organization, but a majority of the teams favor Burkhardt signing that he has done very good work considering he has taken the responsibility of the league's affairs at a time when things were not running smoothly. He is said to be willing to accept the office for another term, and so it is evident that there will be trouble, somewhere before the question is adjusted.

There will be few drafts from the major leagues this year, according to the Southern Michigan managers, but it will not be surprising if some of the class A and B circuit players in the league. Baxter, Ferron, Weisberg, Cosma, Callahan, Nevitt, Streeter and Gilbert are among those outside of Kalamazoo who are likely to be higher up. At the league meeting which will occur some time next week, the re-entry of Bay City and Saginaw may be discussed.

COULDN'T TURN TRICK.

Springfield, O., Sept. 14.—Word has been received here from Indianapolis that Owner Sol Meyer of the Indians would announce a new manager for 1925 by October 1. Charles O'Day, now managing the Indianapolis club, will likely come back to Springfield, and Jack Pen-dry will likely have to hunt another job, although he may be retained as a player only.

THIS MANAGER KNEW BUSINESS END OF NATIONAL GAME.

"THE FUNNIEST STORY OF ALL WAS TRUE." — HUGH JENNINGS.

By HUGH JENNINGS.
Famous manager of the Detroit Tigers. In my career in minor and major leagues I have heard a million funny baseball stories. The funniest of all I read like fiction, but is fact. The man around whom the story hangs is now a prominent semi-professional manager in a large eastern city and has a bank roll that is the envy of many a major leaguer.

This man received his start at a department store clerk. While working for the usual department store salary, he learned that the firm did not back baseball team. It was the only large store in town that was not backing a fast amateur club, as an advertisement dodge.

The clerk was a fan. He read everything printed about baseball, inside and outside, and believed he was just a man to manage a team backed by the store. And he helped the store manager to reach the same conclusion.

Realizing the value of newspaper publicity, he decided he must be a first-class press agent. He was affable, popular and never failed to tip off to the sporting editors any bit of news that came his way, especially about his club. He broke into the sport pages with the name of his firm so often that he soon received an advance in salary.

At the start he scheduled games in his some city only, but his club quickly made such a reputation that out of town teams were asking for dates, usually offering $25 or $50 inducements.

Football Tips for Boys

(This is the third of The Daily Sentinel stories intended to instruct the boys of Fort Wayne in the fundamentals of football.)

TACKLING SHOULD BE INSTINCTIVE; BLOCKING IS ALL IMPORTANT.

Tackling weakness means the actual loss of hundreds of yards a season in a team's defensive playing, while NOT KNOWING HOW TO BLOCK is equally costly to the defense.

Take tackling first: There is but one way to stop the man with the ball. He MUST be grasped firmly about the thighs, with the arms and the weight of the tackler's body must be behind the arms. Other ways MAY be effective sometimes, but the man who gets hold and hangs on between the waist and knees drowns his man—ALWAYS. Runners able to shake off this sort of tackling occur about once in a football generation. Unless several teams band together to purchase one, a tackling dummy is an expensive proposition, although its use will pay in effective tackling during the games.

Not having the dummy, give the back-field every bit of practice possible. Tackling players. Tackling a man in motion, time on each team, and it is a good general policy to put out of the play the man who may stop your man with the ball. It is up to you to do it without fail, even at the cost of going out of the play yourself.

Whether you, in the interference, go on or not, is nowhere near as important as seeing that the would-be tackler does NOT go on. When a man who realizes this block a man, the spectator may think he has tackled him, but he does not. The blocker otherwise good men, know how to block.

TACKLED HARD AND SURE.

Lots of players believe they should not shoot out for those flying thighs just the put themselves out of a play to block a tackler; but remember, there are eleven and it is the impact that brings down the tackler. When the body is thrown sideways, it is as effective as a tackle. Practice to put out of the play the man who may stop your man with the ball. It is up to you to do it without fail, even at the cost of going out of the play yourself.

Speed is positively necessary in tackling and blocking. The runners try to outguess the defenders on the time and direction of the lunge. The top sideways, lengthen or shorten their stride just a fraction, to make the tackler or blocker miss, and it is up to the defender to go at runner or interference so fast that he will not have the time to figure out a trick to dodge.

ISLAND TO GET CHANCE.

Will Fight Alex McCarthy for the Second Base Job.

Judging from press reports, Rovington Island, former Wheeling star, who was recalled by the Yankees, and about the only thing that Mac has on him is a little experience. In the Central this season Island piled up the neat batting average of .251, and second base. He has been with Pittsburgh upon two former occasions and lost out this spring through a badly injured ankle, which held him out of the game.

Alex McCarthy is the only man to be considered as Island's opponent for the guardianship of the position, and about the only thing that Mac has on him is a little experience. He has been with Pittsburgh upon two former occasions and lost out this spring through a badly injured ankle, which held him out of the game.

Must Look Out for Jack. Powell Has a Habit of Breaking These Winning Streaks.

Joe Wood, Boston's great twirler, who has hopes of establishing a new world's record for consecutive victories, had best be aware of one John Powell, a burly pitcher of the St. Louis Browns. Powell has been a constant thorn in the side of Wood's winning streaks, a stunt he has been performing with more or less regularity for fifteen years in the big leagues.

When Walter Johnson was running at top speed recently and had already won a new American league record, he was cruising out for Babe Marquard's figures, he ran afoul of Powell and his fine winning streak was shattered with a defeat. When Wood goes west to St. Louis, Joe must beware of Powell.

In addition to having credit for breaking Johnson's winning streak, Powell can claim the honor of being the longest service pitcher in the National or American league. He has played in the majors since 1897.

PLAYED TOGETHER WHEN BOTH WERE MERELY "KIDS."

Walter Johnson and Ted Easterly formed the greatest kid battery that ever lived. They performed for a wild and woolly team in "Dutchtown," a suburb of Los Angeles. Johnson was then 16 and Ted 17. No club that ever came along ever beat them. They couldn't hit Johnson in the first place, and if they ever did they never got to second, because Ted heaved 'em out. They took on league teams as well as amateurs and never lost a game. Johnson usually struck out twelve to fifteen batters.

Jack Dillon, formerly Buffalo first baseman, then hanging out the game with his eyebrows with Los Angeles in the Coast league, was sent down to look over the kid battery.

Johnson drifted up into Idaho, where Cliff Blankenship found him and signed him for Washington after he had pitched seventy-six consecutive innings without allowing opponents a run.

Easterly joined the Los Angeles club. He rode all night in a day coach, visited his mother in the morning, and caught a double-header in the afternoon without a wink of sleep. In the ninth inning of the first game he hit the score-keeper's home run with one on and won the game. The fans tossed $98 to him.

WAS TRAINED IN TOWN LOT RACES

Miner Boy Could Beat All the Home Horses and Give Handicap.

GAVE GOOD EXHIBITION

When Miner Boy was a colt he belonged to a Pennsylvania miner who had a weakness for fast horses, accompanied by a thirst for strong liquor, and on Saturday afternoons and national holidays he used to get his mount out and race on the streets and town lots.

Fretty soon he found out that he had the fastest horse in the mining camp and about the time this dawned upon him his competitors began to see the light so opposition fell off until he had nobody to race against him. Eventually he was forced to give a handicap of a quarter of a mile or so just to get into a race and the horse became accustomed to winning his races from a bad start.

In the final heat of the first race at the fair yesterday the horse looked hopeless. He acted so badly at the post that after the starting judge had scored the field two or three times he told Teachout, Miner-Boy's driver, to take care of himself and sent the horse away with the horse and half way to the draw gate. He drove a long mile to reach the field, as he had to go round every horse and Harold H. barely nuzzled him at the wire. He was the first half in little better than a minute.

All the races were won in straight heats and the summaries are as follows:

WOOD PLAYED AT SHORT AT START

Became Pitcher by Accident and Has Made Wonderful Record This Year.

WINTERS' ON A FARM

Boston, Sept. 14.—Christy Mathewson and Babe Marquard, of New York, may be the princes of the National league pitchers, big Ed Walsh may be the Bull Moose of the Chicago White Sox and the mighty Walter Johnson, of Washington, may be the best bet of Washington, but the Boston baseball public swears by the prowess of young Joe Wood. Smoky Joe is the pride of every Bostonian and is as much a part of the baseball crazy town as are its baked beans and brown bread on Saturday night.

Wood tells this story of how he broke into the game: "When I reported for duty with the Hutchinson team I was signed as a shortstop. The other infielders were veterans and the pitching staff was composed of a stable of good old has-beens. I was versatile even then and after receiving my try-out in the infield would go out and gallop all over the lot chasing flies. Then sometimes I'd go over to a corner of the outfield with one of the second string catchers and burn a few over."

"One afternoon Manager Jay Andrews thought he would like to accustom his hitters to speed and asked me to take the mound for a while. Only too eager to accept the chance I entered the box and from that day on I have been a pitcher. None of the members of the team could hit me and I was hailed far and wide as a find, after pitching a few games, which I won."

In his first season with the Red Sox, 1909, Wood's record of games was 11 won and 7 lost. The next year he won 12 and lost 13, when his team fell away down the ladder, but last year he came back and finished with a record of 23 games won and 17 lost. He has twice pitched no-hit games, once when with Hutchinson and last year against the St. Louis Browns.

Against the St. Louis Browns, Wood is at his best. There is never any question as to who wins when he faces that team. The explanation necessary about a game in which he pitched against the tailenders of the American league is, "Wood pitched." His best work has been done against this team and time and again a shutout, a no hit game or a no man reach first base game has been spoiled by Shotton of the Browns. Shotton is a regular jinx for Wood.

Wood is not superstitious but he would rather sit up all night than sleep in berth No. 9 of a Pullman sleeper. Incidentally Wood's name is not Joe called him Joe, though his name was not Joseph and it has always been Joe Wood since then.

Wood was born in Kansas City, Oct. 23, 1880, and in his early youth lived in Chicago and O'Fallon. At present he makes his home next to his father at Parkers Glenn, Pa. Wood, sr., has purchased a farm there and Sir Joseph followed suit. Every winter Wood takes the best of care of himself, living out of doors practically all the time. The result is that when he reports in the spring he is ready for work at once.

First Day of School at New St. Rose Academy in Monroeville

Handsome Building to Be Dedicated Sunday in Impressive Service Conducted by Rt. Rev. Bishop Alerding and Other Churchmen.

[Sentinel Staff Correspondence.]

Monroeville, Ind., Sept. 14.—When on Monday of this week the handsome new school building of the St. Rose Catholic parish at Monroeville, recently completed, was opened for use there were seventy-one scholars enrolled and that number present.

The event marked the commencement of the Catholic parochial schools in Monroeville and in the St. Rose parish. Heretofore the children of the denomination have been attending the public township schools. Now they will attend their own parochial schools.

Hence the opening day was a marked event in the history of the parish and to perpetuate it in picture Rev. Norbert Felden, the pastor of the parish, called a photographer from Fort Wayne and a group picture of the children standing in front of the new building was taken—a picture of them as they appeared at their "first day at school."

There were seventy-one scholars present on the opening day. This number was increased during the following days and the enrollment of the schools will show eighty pupils. The school building has the capacity for caring for one hundred comfortably.

There are two school rooms used, with three sisters as teachers, Sister Ethelbert being the superioress. They are the sisters from the School Sisters of St. Francis at Milwaukee, Wis.

The St. Rose Academy.

The new school building is called the St. Rose academy. It is a two-story pressed brick edifice, with stone ornamentation, with basement hall underneath and a wing extending eastward in which the home of the resident sisters is located. The main building is 35x80 feet and the wing 25x37, steam-heated, electrically lighted and modern in every detail. In its construction and equipment, with furnishings, it has cost the parish $10,000. Outside of Fort Wayne there isn't a finer or more comfortable school building in the county.

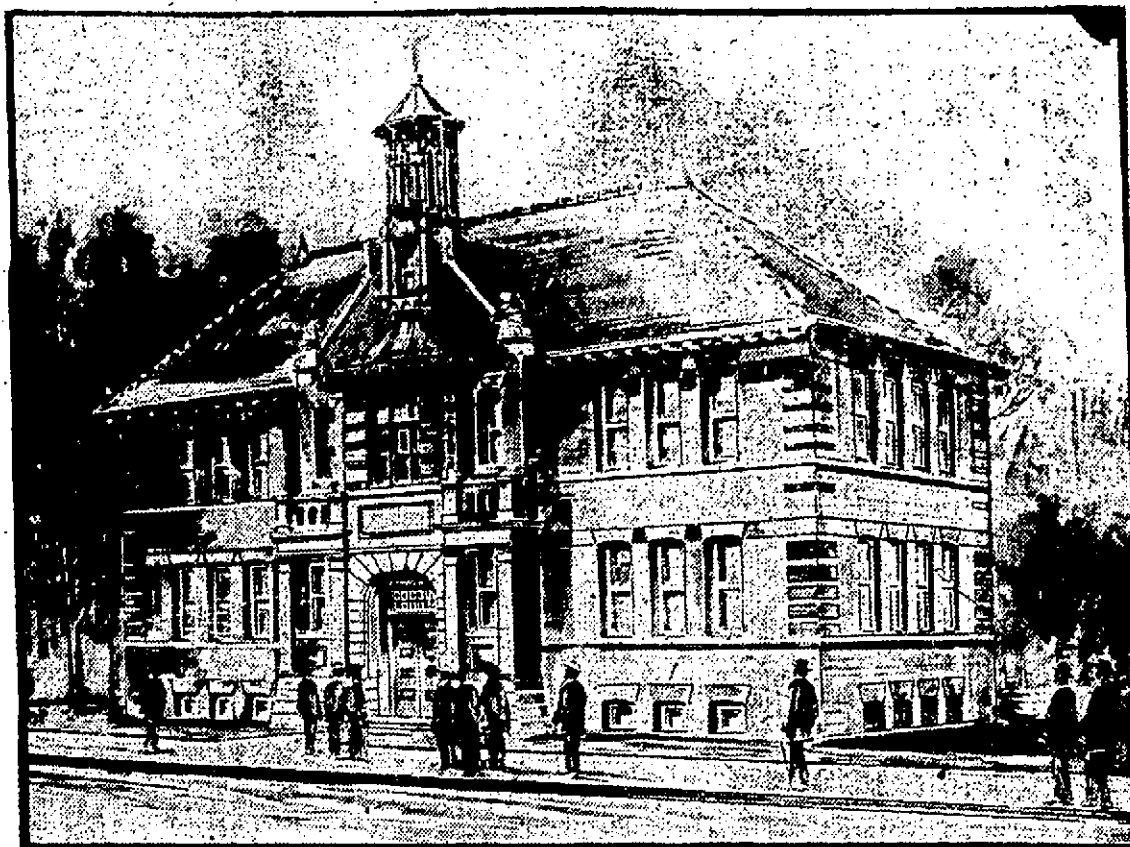

The St. Rose academy faces on Mulberry street, one of the best streets of the town. The two school rooms are located on the first floor with a wide hall leading to them from the two entrances, and cloak and coat rooms and toilets conveniently located. The lower hall leads to the wing building occupied by the sisters as their home. These are arranged with every living convenience.

On the second floor there is a large hall, or the St. Rose auditorium, as it is called. It is equipped with a large stage for entertainments, equipped with scenery, etc. Its seating capacity is 400, chairs being used. It is designed to use this auditorium, which is the largest in the town, for entertainments of a varied character. The opening attraction in it was a play, "The Light Eternal," given by the theatrical company of Manager M. E. Rice, of the Majestic theater at Fort Wayne, which scored a great success in regard to attendance and the merits of the production.

The basement room of the building is a large one, with a cement floor, and will be equipped for social entertainments, meetings, etc., for which it is nicely adapted. It is also electrically lighted and steam heated and provided with tables and chairs.

Dedication Sunday.
It had been intended to dedicate the new building before the opening of the parochial schools, but because of the engagements of the bishop, this was not done. The dedication will take place tomorrow, the Rt. Rev. Herman J. Alerding, the bishop of the diocese, officiating. The time is 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and there will be a large concourse of people in attendance from Monroeville, Fort Wayne and other places. In fact, it will be a big day for Monroeville—a proud one for the St. Rose parish and Father Felden, the pastor.

NEW ST. ROSE ACADEMY AT MONROEVILLE.

The bishop and other clergy coming from Fort Wayne will be met at the interurban station by the societies of the congregation and escorted to the church, where the bishop will deliver the sermon and administer the sacrament of confirmation to a class of sixty. Then the congregation will repair to the school building adjoining, where the dedication exercises will be held, the sermon being delivered by Rev. Cornelius J. Hagerty, C. S. C., professor of philosophy in the University of Notre Dame.

Banquet in the Evening.

In the evening there will be a banquet held in the St. Rose auditorium, Peter McArdle acting as toastmaster. The first toast responded to will be by Rev. John R. Quinlan, pastor of the Cathedral at Fort Wayne. He will speak on the subject, "Why Our Catholic Schools?" The other speakers will be Maurice Neizer, of Fort Wayne, who will give a review of the history of the St. Rose parish; Dr. Daniel Kaufman, who will speak of the church and congregation at the present time, and Bishop Alerding and Congressman Cline. The "Pillars" orchestra will furnish the music.

Prominent among those present at the exercises of the day will be J. B. Neizer, who was for years one of the active members and workers of the parish, and

Rev. Augustin Adam, a missionary who a quarter of a century ago labored in Monroeville and vicinity for the upbuilding of the church. He is now over eighty years of age and is at the Sacred Heart academy.

The St. Rose Parish.

The first regular Catholic services held in Monroeville were in 1840. There were then but few Catholics in the vicinity, for the country was new and the settlement did not then have an incorporated existence. The Rev. Julian Benoit, one of Fort Wayne's early consecrated priests and the first vicar general of the diocese, in that year and for some time afterward visited the locality and conducted services, among the homes, the homes in which he said mass alternately being those of the Jeffroy and Griffith families. These visits were made at regular intervals by Father Benoit and also later by Father Madden, finally a room in the home of another early resident, John Hayes, being arranged as a temporary chapel.

In 1868 Father E. P. Walters went from Fort Wayne to Monroeville regularly once a month and conducted services and soon succeeded in having a frame church, 28x50 feet in dimensions, erected and fitted up. This served for religious purposes for nineteen years, among those conducting services being Fathers J. H. Brammer, J. M. Graham, A. M. Meili, A. Heitman, T. Hibbelin, J. Grogan, H. T. Wilken and B. Hartman. It was during the ministry of Father Wilken that the congregation secured a cemetery. The two latter priests went from Arcola to Monroeville to conduct the services here at regular intervals, Arcola being their residence parish.

The first resident pastor was in 1884, Rev. J. Grogan, who was among those who visited there in his ministerial capacity. He was succeeded by Rev. J. Hoss, and in 1887 Rev. B. Hartman was appointed pastor. It was in October of his first year as pastor that the old church was destroyed by fire. The parish at once inaugurated a movement to build a new house of worship and it was finished and ready for use in May of 1889. Its dimensions were 35x52 feet, a handsome edifice and costing $9,500. It was dedicated by Bishop Dwenger on May 12, 1889, the dedicatory services being attended by many Fort Wayne people. A special train of fifteen coaches, every one packed to its limit with people, being run over the Pennsylvania railroad for the accommodation of those attending.

The pastoral residence was erected in 1882 by Father Hartman and improved in 1899 by Father Pagnot. In 1902 Father Hartman was succeeded as pastor by Rev. F. Von Schwedler, and then in 1907 came Rev. L. R. Paquet. The pastors since then have been Rev. F. J. Danburand, Rev. T. M. Conroy and Rev. Norbert Felden, the present pastor.

Pastor of the Parish.

Rev. Norbert Felden, the pastor of the St. Rose parish, for the children of which the school house is designed, was born on April 9, 1880, at Marytown, Wis., and when one year old removed with his parents to St. Francis, Wis., and in 1901 went to the St. Meinrad, where he entered the St. Francis seminary and secured his early education, seminary in Spencer county, Ind., and pursued a theological course, which was completed in 1905. On June 17, 1905, he was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Alerding at the Cathedral in Fort Wayne and was assigned to his clerical duties as assistant at the St. Peter's church in Fort Wayne.

Father Felden remained at his pastoral duties in Fort Wayne until 1906, when he was assigned to a charge at North Judson, which he filled for fourteen months, and then, on September 9, 1909, was transferred by the bishop to the St. Rose parish at Monroeville, which for three years he has filled so efficiently. His parishioners love him and he is esteemed highly by all the residents of Monroeville and vicinity.

In the work of the parish he has always been active. It embraces seventy-five families, many of which are in the farming communities, and the parish is prosperous. For the establishment of the schools Father Felden has been particularly zealous and in his work he has the earnest support of the bishop and his parishioners. The St. Rose academy is the pride of Father Felden, as it is also of the Catholics of Monroeville and vicinity.

The Church Societies.

The St. Rose parish is fortunate in its society organizations and its trustees and they have labored with marked success in making the parish the prosperous one it is today. The trustees are Peter McArdle, William Smith and John Schnab.

The three active societies of the congregation are the St. Joseph Benevolent society, of which Dr. Connelly is president; the Holy Name society, of which J. C. Peters is president; the Young Ladies' society, of which Miss Mary McArdle is president, and the Altar society, of which Mrs. William Smith is president.

Fine Parish Property.

The completion and occupancy of the new school and sisters' residence gives the St. Rose parish a fine property at Monroeville. Almost an entire block is owned by the congregation in the part of the town in which the academy is located. It comprises six lots. On them are also situated the church, which is a handsome one, and the parsonage, modern in all its details, with the power house. All the buildings are equipped with the waterworks system. The buildings of the parish, not taking the real estate into consideration, are valued at over $30,000.

She announced she was making the trip on a $500 wager that a young woman can make such a trip unchaperoned without getting into difficulties. Miss James is 24 years old and pretty. She has been living in Manila six years and is the daughter of a banker. If she is annoyed by any one or has any difficulty on her trip she is to make a record of it and according to her agreement, to cable her father. So far, she says, she has had no difficulty not only operates a farm, but has lived on it for forty years. That he is a real tiller of the soil is proved by his having served for four years as president of the Georgia state agricultural society. Mr. Hughes found in his mail a request from a constituent that puzzled him. It was evidently written by a wife who went to the general store and told the clerk she wanted to look at some of the invisible veils. This is the letter: "Dear Dad: Send Yopp over in a new seedless tomato. I want to see 'em." I write to ask you to send me sum of these seeds so I can grow 'em." Dr. B. T. Galloway, at the bureau of plant industry, said the seedless tomato had not been perfected.

Washington, Sept. 14.—An aid in the "back to the land" movement has appeared in the form of a series of pamphlets entitled "Agricultural Opportunities," compiled by the division of information of the bureau of immigration and Naturalization, Department of Commerce and Labor. The series gives information concerning the resources, products and physical character of the various states. The information was collected primarily for immigrants who apply at the bureau's offices in New York or Galveston. The government, however, will supply the publication to all who apply.

HIS HEART STILL THREE MINUTES

Lineman Is Revived After Pulsation Is Completely Ceeked.

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—Anthony Lama, 25 years old, a lineman, was revived here after his heart action had completely stopped, according to the statement of Dr. R. Francis Taylor, police surgeon of the nineteenth district. Lama was trimming a city lamp, when he touched a live wire and was hurled unconscious to the ground twenty feet below. Dr. Taylor happened to be near and used what is known in the profession as Sylvester's method of artificial respiration. Despite the fact that there was absolutely no pulsation for at least three minutes, he succeeded in restoring the man after working over him for more than an hour. Surgeons say many deaths from electrocution might be avoided if artificial respiration were resorted to immediately.

Those who have been interested in the preliminary work for the excursion to Toledo tomorrow on account of the Catholic Central Verein, are inclined to the opinion that the crowd will be the largest that ever left Fort Wayne for Toledo under similar circumstances. The railway company has provided equipment for accommodating 1,000 people and the excursion committee and the local Wabash passenger men believe that it will be needed. The excursion trains will leave the city at 5:30 o'clock in the morning. The excursion from Fort Wayne is for the St. John's District Verband, which embodies the St. Carolus Borromeus and St. Aloysius societies of St. Mary's church; St. Martinus and St. Stephen's societies of St. Peter's church; St. Anthony's society of St. Paul's church, and St. Aloysius society of St. Andrew's church. Besides the members of these societies there will be many who do not belong to them, including a number of women, on the excursion train. The Electro-Technic band has been engaged for the occasion.

DEPOT PEOPLE FRIGHTENED.

See Man Knocked Down by Train and
A number of depot attendants and travelers and the "depot attendants" of the Pennsylvania were badly frightened last evening when A. J. Goldsmith, of Philadelphia, walked in front of locomotive No. 7167 as it was backing down the tracks to be attached to westbound train No. 11 and was knocked down. The witnesses turned their heads expecting a horrible fatality, but nothing more than a few minor bruises and some ruffled clothing resulted. Mr. Goldsmith said he saw the locomotive backing up, but thought it was on another track and paid no attention to it until it struck him and pushed him over. The engine was immediately stopped.

SECTION MEN STRIKE.

Clover Leaf Raises Wages and Men Report for Work.

Section men on the Clover Leaf railroad at Warren went on a strike this week for higher wages and won out. The time the men were off duty was of short duration, but proved very effective. The laborers had been receiving $1.50 per day for caring for the roadbed in the vicinity of Warren. With the high cost of living they realized the proper support of their families on that amount was impossible. The strike followed and Emory Miller, the section foreman, made his inspection trips alone for a few days. When the matter was taken to headquarters a raise of fifteen cents a day was offered. The advance proved satisfactory and the men returned to work. The raise is the largest single advance ever made by that railroad on that division.

SOME MINOR INJURIES.

Yesterday the Pennsylvania surgeons were called upon for aid by five employees of the company who had sustained minor injuries. Brakeman C. J. Markey hurt one of his knees while alighting from a moving freight car; Henry F. W. Schaefer was struck on the knee by a piece of coal which rolled from a tank upon which he was making repairs in the shop; Carpenter A. Bengtson had a leg injured in the shop; Frank Deatrich was struck on the chin and injured while engaged in car repair work and F. H. Borchering, of the machine shop, had a foot injured by a piece of metal falling upon it. His injury is the most severe of all.

ITS DIFFERENT IN KANSAS CITY.

While every employer of laborers in Fort Wayne is short and eagerly looking for men, in Kansas City hundreds of men are vainly looking for employment, according to information conveyed to Dr. C. B. Stemen in a letter from his daughter, Mrs. Hughes, who recently returned to her home in that city after a visit with her parents in Fort Wayne. As a result of the scarcity of work for common laborers, Mrs. Hughes writes, crime is on the increase in Kansas City and hold-ups and burglaries are frequent and one of the houses broken into belongs to Dr. Stemen and was occupied by his family when they resided in Kansas City.

HAVE RETURNED FROM FLORIDA.

M. N. Plumadore, the piano dealer, and Charles Shoup and John Savoy, machinists at the Pennsylvania shops, have returned from Florida, where they spent two or three weeks. Mr. Plumadore was on St. Andrews bay and is enthusiastic of the beauties of that place and the opportunities it offers in the way of fishing. He spent considerable time at that sport and had wonderful luck. Messrs. Shoup and Savoy were in Florida to look after some real estate interests and they are enthusiastic concerning the advantages and beauties of that country also. Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Savoy were with their husbands.

INSPECTING HIS PROPERTY.

Baron Von Gwinner, of Berlin, Germany, one of the heavy stockholders of the Wabash and Missouri Pacific companies, passed through the city in a special car on passenger train No. 1 at noon today. He is making an inspection of the railroads in which he and some other Berlin capitalists are interested. Supt. J. C. Sullivan, Division Engineer W. S. James and some of the other Wabash officials accompanied the baron from Detroit to Fort Wayne, stopping off here to look after some railway business.

OPENED AN ARTERY.

A piece of metal flew off the hammer Wabash Boilermaker Thomas J. Morris was using in his work at 9:30 o'clock this morning and buried itself in his left arm, midway between the elbow and shoulder, puncturing the artery. The blood spurting out and badly frightened the comrades of the injured man, though he did not believe he was badly hurt. Dr. C. F. Kaadt, who attended Mr. Morris, says the injury is not serious. He went to his home, 1015 Wilt street, after the wound had been dressed.

COMMITTEE MEETING TONIGHT.

The executive committee of the Pennsylvania Company Employees Veterans' association will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in Unity hall, corner of Calhoun and Holman streets, to talk over matters connected with the coming annual banquet and business meeting of the association, which will be held at the Elks' home Saturday, October 5.

REPAIRED ELEVEN ENGINES.

Although the Pennsylvania shopmen were off duty a day this week, on account of the fair, the output of repaired locomotives was of the usual number. Included among them were Nos. 7019, 7131, 7142, 7313, 7324, 7365, 7647, 7740, 8071, 9024 and 9950.

HERE'S THE "PROTECTIVE" TARIFF'S LITTLE JOKE ON THE AMERICAN MECHANIC.

American Manufacturers, Sheltered by High Tariff, Charge 30 Per Cent. More for His Tools Than They Charge Canadian and European Mechanics for Those Same Tools.

(By Byron W. Holt, Chairman Tariff Reform Committee of Reform Club.)
The workingman, like everybody else, has been fooled by a "protective" tariff that protects the foreigner and taxes him. He has even been cheated out of protection on his working tools.

Last year American manufacturers exported over $110,000,000 worth of machinery and tools, selling nearly all at lower prices than the American workingman had to pay at home for the same machinery and tools.

The steel trust, sheltered by the tariff, has forced Americans to pay an average of 30 per cent. more for its products than it charges the foreign trade. Here are some instances:

A Cheney edge-eye hammer made in Little Falls, N. Y., costs the American carpenter a sixth more than the price at which the Henry Cheney company finds it profitable to sell the same hammer for export to the English carpenter.

For his hand and rip saws, made by the National Saw company, in Newark, N. J., the American carpenter pays 36 per cent. more than the price to the Canadian carpenter.

A mortising machine made by the W. F. & John Barnes company, in Rockford, Ill., costs the American builder 21 per cent. more than the export price of the same article to any builder beyond the country's boundaries. The American apprentice who buys a scroll saw from this company also has to pay 21 per cent. more than it sells for abroad.

made by the National Saw company, Newark, N. J., cost 37 per cent. more; their plastering trowels (eleven inches) 30 per cent. more, and their brick trowels 36 per cent. more to Americans than they charge for export.

"Protection" for the American workingman is placed at 45 per cent. on these tools for earning a living.

The domestic price of a machinist's vice No. 72, manufactured by the Prentiss vice company, at Watertown, N. Y., is 21 per cent. higher than the export price. This company charges wholesale the American mechanic $9 for its combination pipe vice No. 712, which it sells for export for $8.

Machinists' hammers (two pounds), manufactured by the Henry Cheney Hammer company, of Little Falls, N. Y., cost machinists here $1.51, nearly one-third more than the export price per dozen.

Coe's Wrench company, at Worcester, Mass., charges machinists for some wrenches an advance of 25 per cent. over their export price. The price of their knife handle wrench (ten inch) and of their steel-handle wrench is a quarter higher to the American machinist than they offer these tools for export.

Machine bolts, large and small, manufactured by the Columbus Bolt works, at Columbus, Ohio, cost the American purchaser 40 per cent. more than the export price.

Collins' coal picks, stone picks and mattocks, long cutters, cost the coal miner 11 per cent. more than the export price of these same tools. The moulder pays for his Blair moulder's spade, made by the Oliver Ames & Sons corporation, at North Easton, Mass., a fifth more than its export price.

The Oliver Ames & Sons corporation, of North Easton, Mass., charges American excavators $12 a dozen for Ames east steel shovel "D" handles, $12.75 a dozen for long handle steel shovels, and $9.50 for A. Lee shovels, "D" handles, in all three cases 15 per cent. more than the export price.

The Henry Cheney Hammer company, of Little Falls, N. Y., charges horse shoers a fifth more than their export price for farriers' hammers, while the United States Horseshoe company, at Erie, Pa., also makes horseshoers here pay a fifth more than its export price for steel horseshoes, and nearly a third more than its export price for iron horseshoes.

The National Saw company, located at Newark, N. J., charges the American plumber for his sixteen-inch saws $6.32 a dozen at wholesale, 37 per cent. more than its export price.

The American carriage maker pays $4.05 for a thousand Eagle tire bolts 1/4x2 inches, at wholesale, instead of $2.90, the export price, or 40 per cent. more, and a third more for Eagle carriage bolts, made by the Columbus Bolt company, in Ohio.

These "protective" duties have become prohibitive. Under them, hardly any machinery and tools are imported, and so the consumer has no relief. He has to buy the trust tools, with the tariff tax added to them for the trust's benefit, or else go without tools.

BIG EVENT DREW
CROWD OF 10,000

Gov. Marshall Speaks at Elwood Tin Plate Anniversary.

WHAT UNITY CAN DO

Elwood, Ind., Sept. 14.—With 10,000 visitors from all corners of the state, Elwood yesterday celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the opening here of the first tinplate factory in America. Fully 100 distinguished visitors occupied the reviewing stand during the parade and in the afternoon 2,000 persons, guests of the tin plate company, were taken on an inspection trip through the factory, now employing 3,000 persons and which twenty years ago opened with a pay roll of 250 men. The industrial parade of the morning was three miles in length and one of the most elaborate ever seen in this part of the state.

Governor Thomas R. Marshall, the principal speaker of the afternoon, told briefly of his visit here twenty years ago. He complimented the citizens upon the progress made in the community since then.

Shows That Unity Counts.

"The lesson I gain from today's celebration," he said, "is that unity upon the part of the citizens and the mutual desire to help forward the progress of the city can do anything and has been responsible for the signs of prosperity I see on every hand here today."

"Twenty years ago," said George P. Early, chief claim agent for the tin plate company, "men stood on these streets and said tin plate could not be manufactured in America and that we must continue to pay a tariff of $1.50 a box on all tin plate used here, which must be shipped from England and Wales. Today 18,000,000 boxes are being manufactured in America annually at a saving of millions of dollars to the public, and in Elwood alone more than $1,000,000 is being paid out each year in wages. Canning industries have been made possible, and the celebration of today marks the anniversary of one of the greatest industrial advancements in the history of the country."

The day's program ended last evening with band concerts, free street attractions and an elaborate fireworks display.

Orville Hodgson, the Boy
Forger, Now Thought to Be in New Orleans.

OTHER INDIANA NEWS

Marion, Ind., Sept. 14.—Sheriff Tony George has telegraphed the police department of New Orleans to make search of that city for Orville Hodgson, the boy forger, who yesterday telephoned his father, John Hodgson, residing near Upland, the son's father coming from that city. Hodgson's father was called to the telephone during the afternoon, being informed that some one in New Orleans desired to communicate with him.

When he answered the call he detected that it was his son speaking at the other end, but he was unable to understand what the youth wanted. Mr. Hodgson said the telephone girls refused to repeat his son's message and he asked Sheriff George to notify the New Orleans police to arrest his son.

It is believed young Hodgson fled to New Orleans from Cincinnati after having eloped with Miss Hattie Brainbridge, a popular society girl of Louisville, Ky.

Following the accident Mrs. Debaun carried the child a mile before she found aid, as the accident had occurred on a road that is traveled but little, and it was several hours before they were able to have their injuries dressed by a physician. It is believed both will recover.

Queer Questions by Hundreds Pour Into Fort Wayne Telephone Exchange Where More Than 90,000 Calls Are Answered Each Day

Mrs. Lynch, Chief Operator at Home Company's Main Exchange, Could Write Vaudeville Sketch from Her Nine Years' Experience at the Desk—Some Incidents of the Work at a Busy Spot That is So Quiet One Feels Like Walking on Tip-toe as He Invades the Kingdom of the Hello Girl—A Few Samples of the Queries That Come Over the Wires.

Think how sorely tried is the ordinary individual's patience with but a few "foolish questions." The average person generally begins to lose control of himself and to tinge his voice with a tone of gruffness or disgust when only one or two such unnecessary queries are put to him.

Consider, then, what a calm, cool, self-possessed and yet responsive nature must be possessed by one who has as her daily duty to answer between 1,500 and 2,000 questions per day of eight working hours, when fully 70 per cent. of such questions are either absurd or impossible to answer. In addition, she must give attention to complaints, adjust differences, attempt to placate the irascible subscriber who feels that he has a "kick" coming, and supply information wherever possible, all the while keeping even-tempered about it.

Such a task is that of the chief operator of the telephone exchange in an average-sized city, and the exchange of the Home Telephone company in Fort Wayne is no exception.

For nine years Mrs. Gertrude Lynch has been the chief operator of the local Home company, and the figures representative of her tasks during that time while at work are astounding.

Has Answered 4,792,500 Queries. Reducing to figures, Mrs. Lynch during the nine years has responded to 4,792,500 calls, and thousands and thousands of them have either been so absurdly simple or foolish that they have been ridiculous.

Mrs. Lynch can talk by the hour of the funny questions that have been put to her. The listener is enjoying even better entertainment than is afforded on the best vaudeville stages at times.

"I can not remember them all," says Mrs. Lynch, "but one question from one of the leading club women of the city that came to me several years ago has always remained in my memory."

"This lady asked me if I could tell her the number of the phone of a family that lived out in Spy Run. 'You get on the car and go two squares beyond Wagner street,' this person said, 'and then go two squares east.' Well, with such information I could hardly be expected to give a correct answer."

"Another query I got over the phone often amuses me. 'Can you tell me the number of the telephone in the house in Lakeside that has just been made vacant by the couple who were divorced?' I told her I did not know how I could give her that number, for I did not know the name of the family," says Mrs. Lynch. "Well, don't you read the papers?" and I told her I did, but not always the divorce news.

"And then, again, a very prominent lady whom I happen to know and who is noted for her keenness and wit, called me up and wanted to know if I could remember the name of a carpet cleaner that I had given her a year before. She wanted to know the name. Well, I gave her the number of a cleaner that I knew, and it happened to be the same one. But since giving her that name the year before, I had answered calls from thousands of people, and my memory is not so elastic."

"And still another. Of course, there are all sorts of calls that come in to me and I must answer them all to the best of my ability. Somebody asked me not so long ago if I could give her the name of a big, heavy-set woman who keeps a saloon in the eastern part of the city. I didn't feel guilty when I was able to give her the correct answer.

"I can not tell you all the foolish questions that we get up here in this office. So many are of such trivial a nature that we do not remember them. The girls at the boards in many cases first receive the question, but they have not the time to answer and immediately connect the questioner with my desk. So you see I get my full share of them here."

"But all the questions are not foolish. We are merely supposed to be a regular bureau of information, with encyclopedias, almanacs and dictionaries at our elbow. We're a regular clock for the whole city. Our time up here is supposed to be correct, and a number of people do call us to learn the exact time. But I suspect that others who have telephones are just merely too tired to take out their watch or go into another room and glance at a clock. The telephone is their watch, and the central girl is the easiest one to reach. We keep our clocks timed to the exact second, so that in giving the time no mistakes can be made."

"Other things we are supposed to know about almost before they occur are the results of the baseball games. All our girls are fans or near-fans, and they generally know the results of the Fort Wayne games, but the results in the bigger leagues are not so near the tip of the tongue. During election times we keep a regular sheet of returns, in order to be able to give them to the subscribers who ask us."

"I expect nearly everybody in the city at some time or other has enjoyed the utility of the telephone girl as an alarm clock. There must be a lot of people who are afraid of missing that alarm clock. Our sheet of alarms is full every night. Men and women and children who have made early trains or who particularly want to get up real early, and the telephone girl to ring their phone at such and such an hour. The girls do it willingly, except when those tired aroused think they are being abused and in answering the phone proceed to read some sort of an act about disturbance of the peace."

Boards Blaze After Fire Alarm.

Telephone girls are said to hate to hear the fire alarm. For immediately their boards blaze forth with calls from about half the subscribers on their board. A not unusual sight, but one that is almost amazing, is to witness the exchange board of a telephone company in a city like Fort Wayne following the alarm of the fire bell. During the day the sight is not so pretty, for the little red lights that twinkle whenever the receiver is lifted off the hook do not show up well. At night, however, they blaze forth almost in a burst of flame. For every one wants to know where the fire is located. The girls grit their teeth and steady themselves for the attack, but they are generally unable to cope with it successfully. It is just a case of too many calls, and the mechanism of the human is not tuned to such a gait as to answer a hundred calls within a minute. Mrs. Lynch says she has visited telephone exchanges in other cities, and only a part of them are troubled so much with the fire queries.

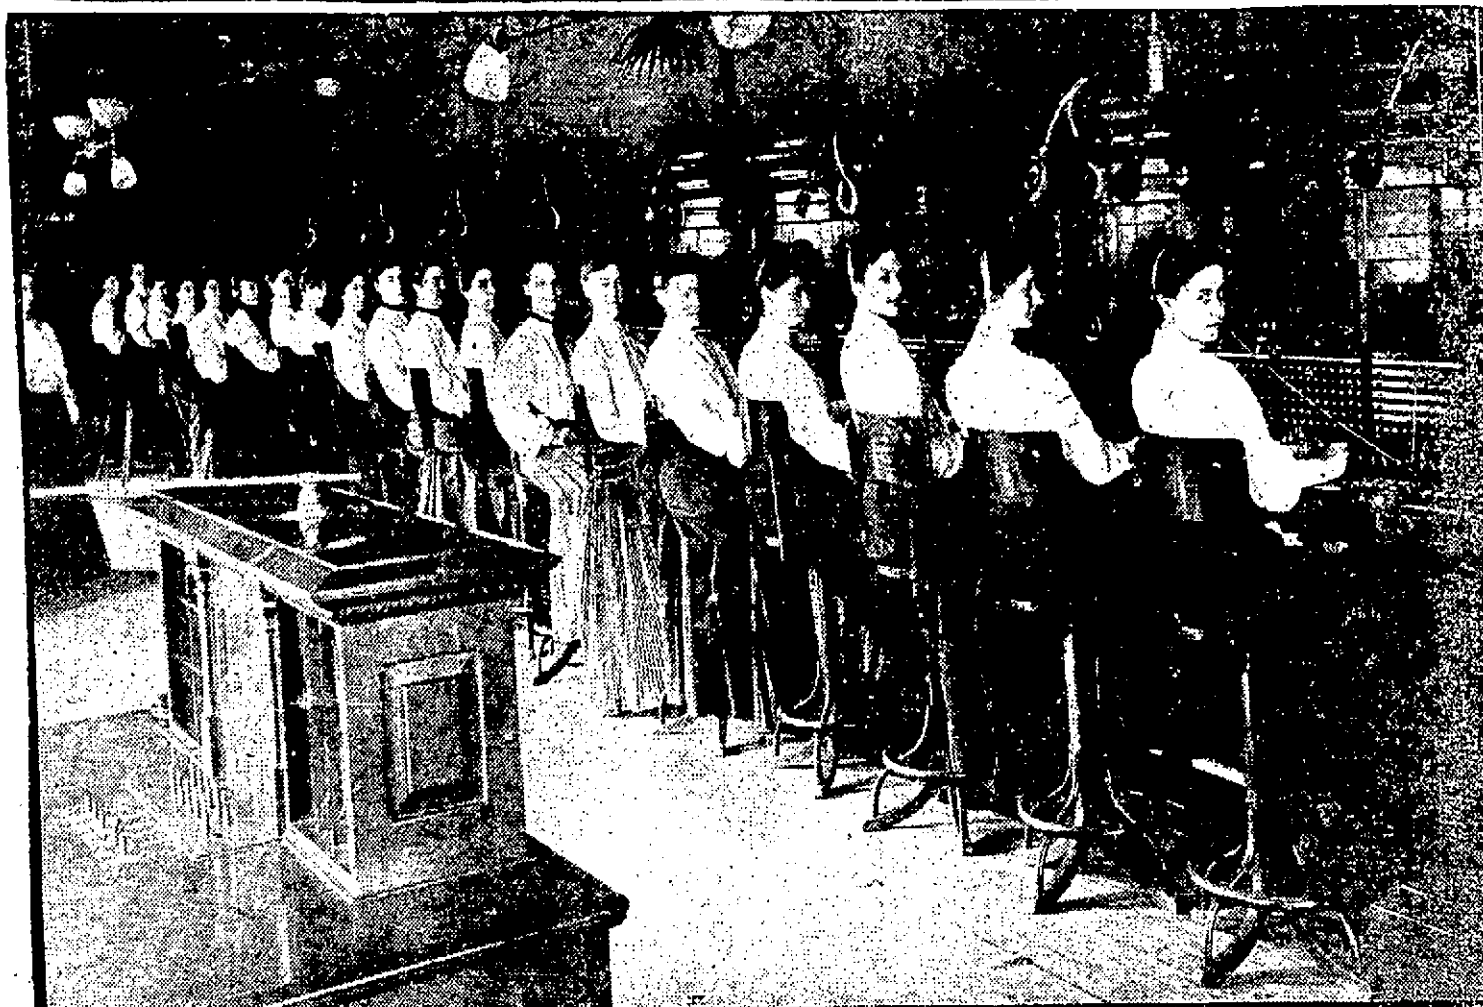

Girls Quiet, But Busy.

Entering the exchange room of the Home company, one feels almost as though he should step on tip toe. The room is located on the third floor of the company's building at the corner of Clinton and East Main streets, and most of the noises in the room are those creeping in from the streets through the open windows.

There are thirty-four exchange boards arranged in a straight line down the full length of the room, with 120 telephones centering on each board. There are about 120 different girls employed as operators, both regulars and for the relief work, allowing one operator for each of the busy boards.

At the boards controlling the telephones in the less busy residence sections of the city, two operators are employed to every three boards. There are about twenty-five girls at work at one time, but only because of the low hum of the voices answering calls and the incessant click as connections are made or broken can one tell that the exchange room is a really busy place.

TWO VIEWS OF THE OPERATORS WORK SHOP IN THE MAIN EXCHANGE OF THE FORT WAYNE HOME TELEPHONE COMPANY.

The operators sit close to the boards in comfortable chairs with their backs turned toward the light. In the exceptionally warm weather cool breezes are blown over the girls from electric fans arranged for them.

Little Time to Visit. With the ever-increasing number of phones, there is more and more for the telephone operator to do, and she now has but little time in which to visit either with her companion workers or with others over the lines. In other words, "ditching" over the telephone with the operator is becoming more and more of an impossibility. The operator is kept her very busiest attending to the calls that now come in on the board, for there is hardly a minute during which some call does not start the little red light burning on the board.

To the rear and on the other side of the room, sit the chief operator, Mrs. Lynch, and her assistant, Miss Bertha Kayser. Mrs. Lynch is quickly seen to be the power behind the throne after a person has been watching the processes through a period of five minutes or so.

Mrs. Lynch's desk is a combination chief's and monitor's desk. It has a series of lights which show whether or not there is any call on the respective boards. When one of those lights appears, the chief knows that the operator at that board should be attending to it, and should the operator be chance be conversing with her neighbor, she is the recipient of a pleasant but stern "s-s-s-t" from the lips of the chief. Generally, such a warning suffices, but the chief also has stronger words at her control. A part of the monitor's desk consists of a series of buttons, one leading to each of the boards, and when one of those buttons is pressed the operator knows that she is under surveillance by the chief.

Other equipment of the chief is her up-to-the-minute telephone directory, with extra leaves pasted between each sheet so that the new numbers may be properly placed, and immediately. Beside her is the cabinet of cards giving the location of phones on every street, and the party or parties who possess a phone of such and such a given number.

Miss Kayser acts as the assistant "bureau of information," and although she has not had the experience with foolish and unnecessary questions as Mrs. Lynch, she has found that one must be a virtual store of knowledge of all sorts. Miss Katherine Rauner is the chief operator during the lunch hour and also during the evening between 5 and 9 o'clock, after which one of the regular operators acts in that capacity.

Three Operators at Night. Beginning at 9 o'clock and continuing until 6 o'clock the next morning, there are but three operators to handle the central exchange. However, these three are most expert, and by means of a multiple combination on their own board, they are enabled to answer calls into any of the boards. The girls station themself at either end and in the center of the board, and after long practice become expert in "guessing" the numbers of the calls into the other boards.

Not long ago a representative of a telephone exchange in another city visited the local exchange, and remarked that he never in any other place saw such exactness in the "guessing" process. The calls during the night hours serve to keep the three girls busy, but they manage to handle them with comparative ease.

Why Service Is Sometimes Poor. The officials of the Home company realize that there has been considerable criticism of their service recently, and they say they are taking as prompt steps as possible to remedy the defects.

"The chief trouble," said one of the officials, "lies in the fact that we are unable to secure and retain enough good operators. The wages we pay are above those received in other lines of work, with the added advantage that telephone operators may wear nice clothes while at work and keep them clean. That, fact alone ought to bring us all the apt girls we need. However, many of the girls take employment with us, work perhaps a year or two, or maybe longer, but generally very soon they either quit working or become married. We are always anxious to secure good operators."

90,000 Calls Daily. There are 90,000 calls coming into the exchange boards of the telephone office every twenty-four hours, and on some busy days the number runs as high as 125,000. With such a number of calls, it is not difficult to realize how some few of them may be neglected.

In service over the city and with the toll lines are 8,100 Home phones, including the desk extensions, etc. A gang of four men and a horse and wagon are kept busy all the time installing new phones. An average of from 75 to 100 new phones are installed every month. The toll service is one of the valuable features of the Home company. Within a radius of eight miles of Fort Wayne 500 farmers are given service. The long-distance messages average 800 every day.

Each day additional cable and wires are strung to relieve the congestion, requiring the services of eight men with a team and wagon. There are now 200,000 feet of underground cable in use. One of the first companies to suffer in an electrical and air storm is the telephone company. Locally, as high as 700 phones have been put out of service by one big storm, and the time required to repair the damage runs often into the weeks.

That Convenient Phone
BY BERTON BRADLEY

Since we have had our phone put in We've called up all our kith and kin, And visited across the wire As frequently as we desire.

The grocer and the butcher, too, We call by phone, as others do. They send our orders, day by day, For phoning's such an easy way.

We phone for this, we phone for that, For cabs and cane, and gloves and hat, For medicine and fancy drinks, For caddies on the golfing links.

We phone our love, we phone our hate, We're phoning early, phoning late. A phone is near our little head: At night we clump it on our head And gently close our tired eyes To telephonic lullabies.

We hope in time let this be known— To take our exercise by 'phone.

When people read about the cures made by a medicine endorsed from far away, it is surprising that they wonder if the statements are true? But when they read of cases right here at home, positive proof is within their reach, for close investigation is an easy matter. Read, Fort Wayne endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills.

W. Meyers, 1039 Franklin Ave., Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "I have done heavy work for years and this no doubt was the cause of my back giving out. Christian Vocations for Young People

An Address by Dr. James M. Gray, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Before the Young Peoples' Conference at Winona Lake, Ind.

(An address by Dr. James M. Gray, dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, before the Young People's conference at Winona Lake, Ind.)

As I am asked to speak to you on the subject of "Christian Vocations for Young People," I would begin with verse 7, in the fourth chapter of Paul's letter to the Ephesians, where he says: "Unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ."

"Us" is the important word here, which does not mean everybody, but only true Christian believers in the sense of redeemed and regenerated men and women. On such as these the Lord Jesus Christ bestows spiritual gifts as he may be pleased to do, as the rest of the verse says. These "gifts" are for the use and blessing of the whole church, and are described in general terms in the following verses as "apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers."

Note this, that while we all believe in education and especially in an educated ministry, yet all the colleges and seminaries and Bible institutes in the world can not make one such apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor or teacher. They have tried to make them and have turned out graduates that looked and acted like them, perhaps, but they were not the real things, and the church has suffered by the imposition. A true apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor or teacher is the gift of the Great Head of the church to his body. He is a spirit-taught and spirit-endowed man, and when the church sees or hears such an one it recognizes his divine commission whether he has the imprimatur of a school or not.

What Ministers Are For. Now, specifically, what are these "gifts" bestowed upon the church for? The answer of the next verse is, "For the perfecting of the saints," which means all true believers, for every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ becomes a saint the moment he so believes. But when the saints are thus "perfected," enlightened, strengthened in the knowledge of the Lord, what are they to do? The answer is to engage in the "work of ministering for the edifying (building up) of the body of Christ." (Verse 12.)

Here comes in the question of Christian vocations for young people who may not have the gift of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors or teachers. There is a work of ministering for them, nevertheless, when they are "perfected" for it by those who have been truly set apart for that task.

What Young Christians Can Do. What is the nature of this work? If the student output of the Moody Bible Institute may be taken as a criterion there is a wide variety in it. We have been taking a census of 8,000 to 9,000 young men and women who have passed through our hands in that institute and have found that some are pastors or assistant pastors, and some are wives of pastors, for the last named is a calling for which Christian young women need a distinctive training. Some are evangelists or evangelistic singers, both men and women; some are home missionaries under the different denominational boards, in the American Sunday school work, the Bible society, or the International Sunday School association, laboring among the Jews, Mormons, negroes and the different nationalities of our cosmopolitan population; some are in other forms of regular church and Sunday school work; some are teachers in colleges, public and private schools, denominational Bible and training institutes, and Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations; some are secretaries in such associations and in colleges; some are superintendents of missions, deaconesses and nurses, while still others have simply gone into commercial or professional pursuits, and in the case of women, are occupied in home duties. It is a most interesting fact that a large number of Christian young men and women secure a training in the Bible and practical methods of work in order to return to their customary vocations at home, in church or in business, and put what they have learned into practice in "the common round, the trivial task" of every day, which is as truly a "work of ministering" in the gospel sense as anything they could do, and a sphere in which it is greatly needed.

Every "Joint" of Value. This brings us to the closing word of Paul on this topic, in verse 16, where, keeping up the figure of the church being the body of Christ, he says: "From whom the whole body fitly joined and compacted by that which every joint supplieth."

New Rudisill School in Fort Wayne Will Be a Model in Modern School Building Construction

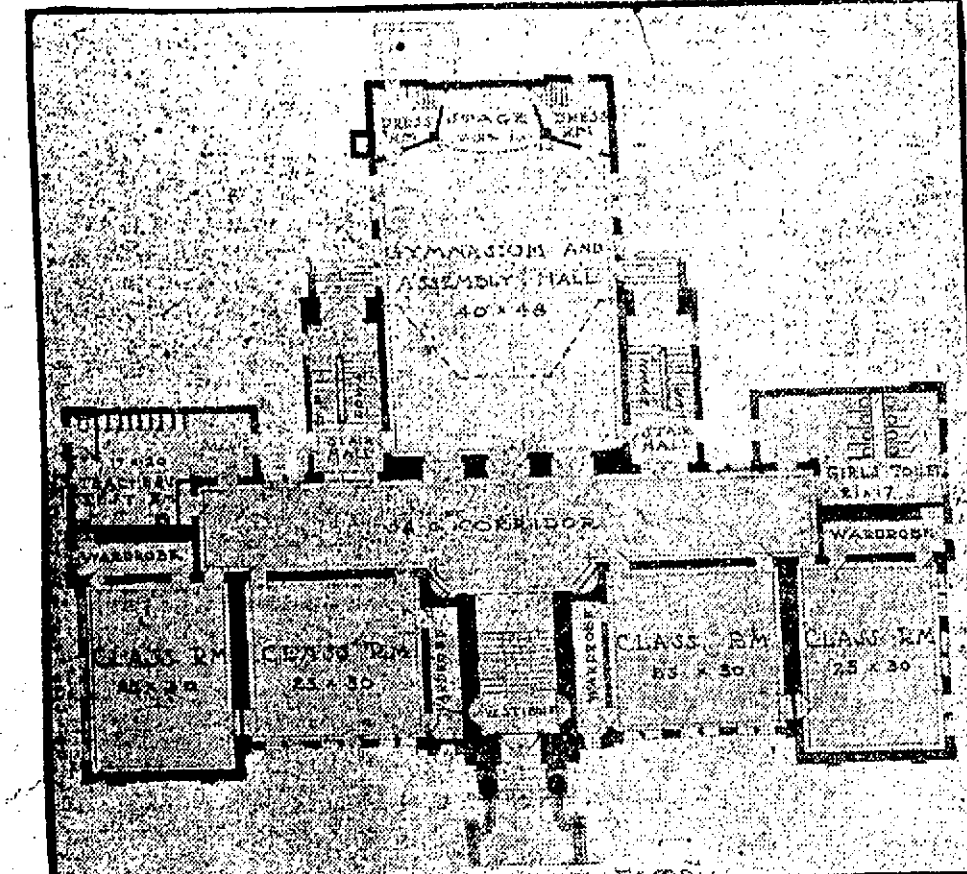

Handsome Public School Structure to Be Erected on Spy Run Avenue Will Incorporate Latest and Most Approved Ideas in School Building Arrangement.

Attending classes in the new Rudisill school building will be almost in the nature of a pleasurable pastime, so modern and complete will be the structure. The work of constructing the building was started several weeks ago by Contractor Hilgeman, whose bid of $48,000 was the lowest when the school board examined the figures of the various contractors. The plans are by Architects Mahurin & Mahurin.

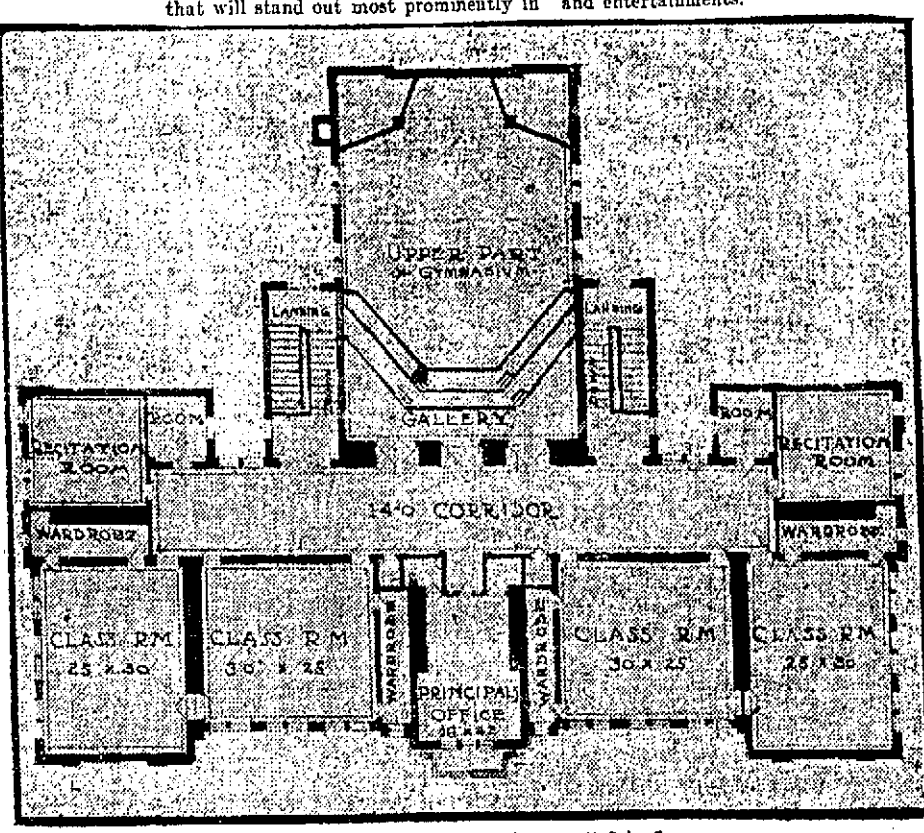

The new building is being erected on the southwest corner of Spy Run avenue and Ruth street, upon a lot that has a frontage of 172 feet. The building frontage is to be 152 feet, with a depth to the rear of the gymnasium of 108 feet. The architectural beauty of marking the structure as probably the most complete and modern in northern Indiana, will be the big gymnasium and auditorium in the rear, with the full equipment of gymnasium conveniences, including lockers, showers and toilets. Underneath the large stage will be a big dressing room. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of about 600, a balcony from the second floor adding considerably to the capacity.

From a physical standpoint, the building will be ideally arranged. Facing the east, the front of the building on both the first and second floors will be composed principally of windows. The seating arrangement in the class rooms will be made so that all the pupils will sit with the light falling over their left shoulders, the teachers' desks to be in the south end of the room. This arrangement will be carried out through the entire building.

School buildings are also becoming more and more of a sociological center, a meeting place for the neighborhood. Sociologists over the country are urging that the public schools be constructed with a view of serving not only as an educational institution, but also as a social center, where the residents of that neighborhood may gather in the evenings for lectures, special meetings or entertainments. And so the Rudisill school is to be built. Its large auditorium will afford a convenient place in which any sort of a meeting can be held, or where the neighborhood dramatic enthusiasts may present plays and entertainments.

THINKS HIS BIG JOB IS TO BE PLEASANT.

What Kind of a Fellow is Albert Wettin, Otherwise Known as George V. of England.

ALBERT WETTIN TRYING TO LOOK PLEASANT

London, Sept. 14.—Yes, he'll take a drink, will Albert Wettin—that is, on the rare occasions when he can get away from home into a club. And he smokes pipes, cigars and cigarettes.

Before he had his present job, being the King of England, he once took a tour under the name of George V., on a ship that, by royal order, carried no hard liquor. Whether this was to keep the crew steady and safe, or whether the order referred to Albert Wettin no one can say for sure. That was in the days when Albert had a little chance, now and then, to let himself out.

But this doesn't mean that Wettin ever took the bit in his teeth and did as he blankety-blank pleased. He wasn't that sort. He has always been the kind of person who followed what folks and customs told him. Would he ever have been found down in the Horseshoe public house, as his father used to be found, drinking with ordinary and interesting folks?

Not on your life.

The best you can say in describing Albert Wettin is that he has been made by a million "you musts" and "you mustn'ts."

"It's pretty hard to figure out just exactly what kind of a chap Albert Wettin would have been if he had been left to himself, from the very first. I'll make a guess that, without all the money and the start in life he had, he would have been a storekeeper, or something else not very important. He'd have been a family man, too—a slipshod-and-fireside kind.

He wouldn't have been the kind of a storekeeper that the children smile at when they come in, or that the neighbors stop to chat with. He'd have minded his own business.

But somebody has pounded it into his head that as king he must make himself pleasant. He succeeds by making the King of England a pleasant fellow, but, do his deignest, he isn't succeeding in making a lbert Wettin a pleasant fellow.

It's rather pathetic to see Albert trying to be a good mixer. He darts about England, attending fairs, races, shoots; there is no effort to please that is too small for him; he even wired his greetings to the dancing masters, when they held their annual meeting in London the other day, though all the time he was on a trip, heading in the other direction, to attend some other function.

You can't say he isn't doing his best. He's being a king as hard as he knows how.

When you see him ride by in his carriage, with his tired smile, his pouchy eyes, and his constant bowing, bowing, bowing, off to some place where he has to go to be a good fellow, you feel like shouting to the people of England:

"Oh, let the poor fellow go home, where he wants to be."

He tells everybody he knows that he has more fun at Balmoral castle, away out in the country, playing with his four boys, than at any other place. They're a pretty fine lot of boys, too. John Wettin is seven; George is ten; Henry is twelve, and Albert is eighteen. Anybody who knows anything about boys, knows that a man would have to be a perfect crab not to find fun with a bunch of boys like that.

Victoria, their sister, is fifteen.

CALL IT GREAT PATRIOTIC DUTY

Suicide of Count Nogi and Wife in Accord With Old Custom.

IS LAUDED IN JAPAN

Tokio, Sept. 14.—The dramatic death of General Count Maresuke Nogi, the soldier-hero of Japan, and that of his wife, the Countess Nogi, who yesterday coincidentally with the departure from the capital of the body of the late Emperor Mutsuhito for its final resting place at Moneyama, committed suicide, the general by gashing his throat with a sword and the countess by stabbing herself in the abdomen, is regarded by the great soldiers of Japan and by the general's other countrymen as a magnificent act of patriotic duty.

But the nation being in the deepest mourning and the new emperor being forced into seclusion by the death of his father, it is impossible to confer the usual posthumous honors and consequently General Nogi officially is not dead.

The count on Thursday morning, prior to attending the funeral services of the late emperor at the palace, summoned a photographer to his home in Akasaka, a suburb of Tokio, and in the garden of his residence posed with his wife while their picture was being taken.

Bowed at Emperor's Bier.

Afterward the count and the countess attended the early funeral ceremony at the imperial palace. Later, visiting the chamber where the body of the emperor was lying in state, the soldier, kneeling before the bier several minutes, offering homage to his departed sovereign and friend.

Returning homeward at the conclusion of the ceremony, Count Nogi called at the palace of Prince Fushimi, where he was a member of the reception committee. When he reached his home the general sat down and wrote a letter to his new sovereign, Yoshihito and then placed a band of crepe around a wall picture of Mutsuhito. Summoning his wife, the couple carefully rehearsed their plans for committing suicide, fixing a time that would be coincident with the departure from the capital of the late ruler's body. The count and countess dressed themselves in full Japanese costume and drank from cups which had been the gift of the emperor to the general, a farewell draught of sake.

and his wife was in accordance with the ancient Japanese custom as a final tribute to their departed emperor and friend, Mutsuhito.

Those who knew General Nogi well declared that his calmness in killing himself was the kind of stoicism he always had displayed, no matter what crisis faced him. They instanced the famous charge of the Japanese up 203 metre hill during the Russo-Japanese war, when as commander of the Japanese third army, Nogi saw the Russians mow down his forces in hundreds, among them two of his own sons, and yet quietly and fearlessly continued the battle, taking the hill and eventually being handed the surrender of Lieut. General Stoessel at Port Arthur.

BRIDE FAILS TO ARRIVE.
Wedding Guests Learn She Will Not Go to Marion.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 14.—Guests who assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McManaman in this city to attend the wedding of Guy Fisher, a glassworker, whose home is at Swazee, and Miss Mac Rieck of Millville, N. J., were informed at the hour the wedding was to have occurred that the event had been indefinitely postponed because of the failure of the bride to come. A telegram was sent to her parents and today word came that Miss Rieck will not come to Marion. Fisher is unable to explain why the young lady changed her mind.

CARNEGIE MUSEUM PRIZE.
Big Skeleton of Prehistoric Animal Uncovered in West Virginia.

Sheridan, W. Va., Sept. 14.—Two dinosaurs, one of immense size, are being uncovered at the Jensen quarry, near Rock Springs. Already seventy-five lengths of vertebrae, beginning with five lengths of the neck and extending far out to the tail of the larger skeleton, have been uncovered and found to be in place. The animal was apparently sixty-five feet long when it lived, many thousand years ago. It is the opinion of Prof. Earl Douglass, who is in charge of the quarry, that this will be one of the greatest additions to the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh. The other skeleton is almost as large, but not in so good a state of preservation.

CAR SHORTAGE IS DELAYING TRADE

This, With Scarcity of Labor is Worrying Local Business Men.

THE BANK CLEARINGS

Car shortage and a scarcity of labor are two things business men of Fort Wayne are up against at this time. As a whole business conditions are excellent and would progress in normal manner, except for the fact that builders cannot get enough men. They are also handicapped by a shortage in material, because cars cannot be secured with which to bring the necessary products to this city.

Farmers inform local commercial men that the crops have turned out better than was anticipated. The assurance is given that the corn crop is producing a much heavier yield throughout this territory than any of the experts predicted early in the growing season. All grains will move rapidly as soon as the railroads are prepared to carry the supply. Shippers all over northern Indiana report that they cannot get a sufficient supply of cars.

Reports from local merchantile concerns give information to the effect that early autumn wearing apparel is selling readily.

The Bank Clearings.
Bank clearings in Fort Wayne this week exceed those of both the previous week and corresponding week last year. Total clearings amount to $1,134,944.28, against $1,043,310.17 last week and $1,007,340.62 for the corresponding week a year ago. Balances amount to $113,405.58 and daily clearances were as follows:

Monday	$201,687.22
Tuesday	223,549.48
Wednesday	184,728.28
Thursday	154,127.96
Friday	189,619.07

NEW EMPEROR OF JAPAN IN HIS ROYAL DUDS.

Here's the first photo of young Harunomiya, emperor of Japan, in the native royal costume, a fearful and wonderful garb worn by his ancestors for centuries. The new emperor "had his picture taken" in it to please those of his subjects who still love the old Japanese dress. Usually the mikado wears European clothes. Harunomiya has not the fear of the camera his late father had, for the latter never had his photograph taken—all prints in existence being made from an oil painting.

BACK TO SOIL IS OF BIG INTEREST

Exposition Representative in Movement Gets Aid in State.

GOVERNOR WRITES

Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—T. M. LaJord, a representative of the American Land and Irrigating exposition, has begun a campaign in Indiana to obtain representation by the state at the exposition, which is to be held in New York November 13 to December 2. The state board of agriculture and the Purdue experiment station are to be the means through which Mr. LaJord expects to create a public interest in the "back to the soil" movement, which he declares his exposition is leading.

A public meeting will probably be called under the auspices of the state board and the experiment station in the near future, and an effort made to interest Indians in the exposition proposition.

Letter From Governor.
A letter from Governor Marshall to G. I. Christie, of Purdue university, and Charles Downing, secretary of the state board of agriculture, was made public by the governor. The letter introduced Mr. LaJord and continues as follows:

"You are quite well aware of the fact that I have been deeply interested during my entire administration in the propaganda of 'back to the soil.' I am more and more impressed that farm life must be shown up in its true light, and the opportunities which it offers for success must be supplemented by showing up the pleasures which can be enjoyed in such a life. Some method must be devised to rid the cities of their congested population.

"This exposition is doing a great work along that line. Unfortunately Indiana, as a state, has no fund at hand to use for that purpose, but I hope that the state board of agriculture and other interested citizens will come to the state's relief and thus enable us to make a showing as to what opportunities are offered people in Indiana along agricultural lines."

Practically all of the eastern states and many in the west have taken up the project, according to Mr. LaJord. He has just started an agitation in Michigan and Ohio, which he said has resulted in obtaining considerable sums of money there to insure exhibits from those states to the exposition. Mr. LaJord will spend some time in various cities of the state, working up interest in the exposition.

T. L. Parks, Murrayville, Ga., Route 1, is in his 73rd year, and like the majority of elderly people, he suffered with kidney trouble and bladder weakness and urinary irregularity. He says: "I have suffered with my kidneys. My back ached and I was annoyed with bladder irregularities. I can truthfully say, one 50c bottle of Foley's Kidney Pills cured me entirely." They contain no habit-forming drugs. Drier Drug Co.

Some of the nicknames in use in the British army are extraordinary. The Royal Scots regiment, for example is known as Pontius Pilate's bodyguard. This was the result of a dispute with a French regiment in the seventeenth century as to which corps had the longest history. The Frenchmen claimed that the founders of their corps were on duty the night after the crucifixion. "Had we been there," came the retort, "we should have kept a better guard." Pall-Mall Gazette.

Mrs. J. N. Hill, Homer, Ga., has used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for years, and says: "I cheerfully testify to the merits of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, having used it in my family for years, and always recommend it. I find it never fails to cure our coughs and colds and prevents croup. I have five children and it is the only thing they take for colds and always with good results. We would not be without it in our home." Foley's Honey and Tar Compound contains no opiates or harmful drugs. Drier Drug Co.

NEED NO LAWYER FOR SEPARATION

Indian Offers "Squaw" the Money in Nevada and Suit Is at An End.

A DIVORCE FOR $37

Reno, Nev., Sept. 14.—It appears to remain for the Indians of "the state of many divorces" to adopt means of disposing of the much-controverted question in a manner which for simplicity far outclasses the law of the state in the matter of securing divorce decrees. No long court arguments, no lawyers, no alimony fights enter into the method. The Pute tribe of seven thousand Indians of the Walker Lake reservation and others scattered throughout Nevada to the number of thousands whose plan is a law among themselves unique and interesting, maintain rigidly the maxim, "no money in sight, no divorce."

All that a "back" or a "squaw" has to do when either want a separation is to tender to the other party the sum of $37, which exact amount carries with it the one significance that a divorce is wanted by the one offering it. Rarely is the tender refused and final separation usually results. The significance of $37 as the amount cannot be learned, it being one of the unexplained and unwritten laws of the tribe.

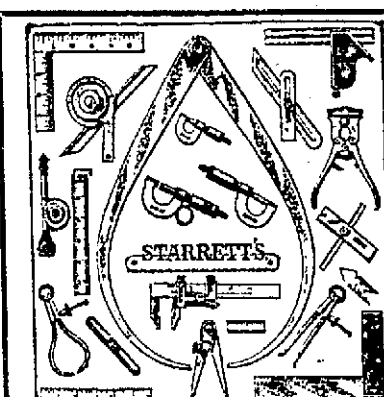

A strange feature is that the law does not prevail among the Watchoo Indians, who are vards of the state and not of the federal government. No promise of money goes with the Putes seeking such tribe separation. The cash must be in the hand of one before the other will listen. It is said that offer has in few very exceptional cases been refused at offered the second time. The objectionable first tender, but it has never been known to fail in the consequences when possibly fearing something tragic if refusal is persistent.

How About This Weather We're Having

Yes, There's Been a Lot More Storm Centers Rolling Across Our Fair Country, But Not Such Slathers of Rain as We Thought—Pesty Storm Centers Start in Asia and Maybe the Sun's Unusual Litter of Spots This Summer Is Cause of 'Em.

PROF. H. C. FRANKFIELD.

What a tremendous lot of rain we have had this summer! From the Rockies to the Atlantic, from the lakes to the gulf, there has been one almost continuous downpour. Everywhere cloudbursts and floods, and interminable clouds and showers. The fountains of the skies have been opened, almost as in the days of Noah. The level of the Great lakes has risen a foot. The Atlantic is threatened. And still it rains—rains—rains.

Gently, friends, gently! Prof. H. C. Frankfield, district forecaster for the middle west, with headquarters at Chicago, lays a calm hand on your arm and says mildly:

"It hasn't rained any more than usual." And you can't trust the evidence of your senses?

Not in this case. Hear further the weather sharp with the judicial temperament:

"It hasn't rained more—it has only rained oftener."

Which brings us to a consideration of the really remarkable thing about the freaky weather we've been having.

China has been disturbing our weather. Aside from her political revolution, she's found time to send storm after storm across the Pacific, to whirl over the continent in a rapid succession of thunder showers that made a tremendous racket, but on the whole didn't amount to much.

Siberia, too, has been a busy little storm factory, and Alaska has been on the job. Between the three of them, we've had "low pressure areas or storm centers," rolling across the country like bowling balls, to the astonishment of government meteorologists and goosebone prophets alike.

"Most of our storms," Prof. Frankfield explains, "come in from the north-west and move southeast and then east across the continent. This summer all of them, except in the south, have come that way."

"By a 'storm center' we mean an area of low barometric pressure. The barometer registers the atmospheric pressure. When it's much lighter than usual, the wind blows in from all sides, and the whole thing whirls in a direction opposite to the hands of a clock, right across the country. First it's warm, and then the disturbance of the air produces clouds and rain; then it's cool for a while, with high pressure."

"Now, these summer storms have been two or three times as frequent as usual. And because there have been so many cloudy and rainy days, and so much cool weather, and what rain has fallen hasn't had much chance to evaporate from the soil, people imagine that the actual rainfall has been vastly more than usual. "It hasn't, except in the southern states. In August, to be sure, there was nearly an inch more than usual in the middle west, but that just about made up the average."

"For the eight months of this year, the middle west shows an actual deficit of rainfall of 2 1/2 inches, being 19 1/2 inches, instead of 22. The east and west are about normal."

"As for the lake levels—that's from last year's rain."

Now, why has Asia been bowling those storms at us across the Pacific?

"Nobody knows," says Prof. Frankfield. "However, Father Richard, director of the San Jose observatory in California, says that it's probably due to sun spots."

So we pass from Asia to the sun. That luminary, too, has been having his troubles. All summer long, Father Richard says, "spots" have been chasing each other across the face of the sun much like the storms across North America. And a sun spot itself is a storm—a storm of incalculable size and intensity.

The sun's atmosphere is a fiery gas, hotter than the hottest furnace. A storm center forms, and takes on the appearance of a little dark spot, when it is really a tremendous hole in the fire-atmosphere, maybe 100,000 miles wide, with flames roaring and shooting up around it sometimes as far as from here to the moon.

Now, the explanation is, from that dark spot there is no heat. So when a big spot forms on the sun, the earth gets less heat. And any variation of solar heat is supposed to create an atmospheric disturbance on the earth. So, in some mysterious way, these solar storms are thought to be responsible for our erratic weather. Magnetic disturbances, too, come from the sun at such times, and these may add to the unsettling effect of the heat variation.

So don't blame it on the weather man, but on the sun.

NOT FIT MOTHER FOR LITTLE ONE

Couple and 4-Year-Old Girl, Found in a Haymow, Held for Week.

OTHER POLICE CASES

A strong-appearing woman of about 40 years, who has been living for five weeks here with a man not her husband, and who was found when arrested in the haymow of a barn with her paramour, is not a fit mother for a sweet-faced, flaxen-haired 4-year-old girl who has innocently shared company with the mother and the man, in the opinion of Judge Mungovan in the city court.

The police are puzzled to know just what to do with the child, but are convinced that the girl should be taken away from the mother. When arrested the pair gave the names of Mrs. Mary Cashy and Frank Jones, and were charged with loitering. Mrs. Cashy said her home was in Van Wert, O., but that abuse by her husband drove her from there and she took the child away from her. There are five other children in Ohio orphan's homes, she said.

Coming here, the woman met Jones and they had been living together, obtaining their meals by what little each could make at work. Their cases have been continued for a week, during which time the child will be cared for by Mrs. Reichelderfer at the county jail.

Had Good Reputation.

Joseph Horn is charged with petit larceny and his case was continued until Monday. Horn has always been a good reputation, but early this morning he was seen coming from the Moellering Brothers & Millard wholesale house with an armful of cigarettes in packages and was taken into custody. He has been employed as night engineer at the Swift plant, but formerly worked at Moellering's and said he had a duplicate key.

Jailed for Taking Money.

William Parker will serve out in the county jail a sentence of sixty days and a fine of $10 and costs for stealing $13 from a scrub woman at the Hof Brau. When out of jail he is ordered to leave the city at once.

Wanted in Canada.

Frank Gardner, arrested for loitering, is probably the man wanted at Alberta, Canada, as a fugitive from justice. A circular showing the picture of the man wanted, and his signature, given as Clarence Mitchell, look to be those of the man Gardner. There is a $50 reward for his arrest.

The Other Cases.

Clarence Hicks, on the charge of neglecting children, will be tried on the 17th. James Clark, who put up a fight when ordered off the rear platform of a street car some time ago, again wanted a continuance and was given until the 21st.

MENACE IN INFANT PARALYSIS.

Chicago Health Department Reports Alarming Increase in Malady.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—The last health department bulletin issued calls attention to an alarming increase in the number of cases of infantile paralysis is Chicago recently. Four deaths during the first ten days of August, says the bulletin, as compared with four deaths during the first seven months of 1912 and only one death in August of last year, suggest greater precautions must be adopted in combating the disease. The contagious disease division has learned of twenty-three cases of infantile paralysis during the first thirteen days of August, 1912, whereas none was reported during the same month last year.

You and your friends are cordially invited to attend a lecture on Christian Science, to be given Monday evening, September 16th, by Virgil Q. Strickler, C. S., New York City, N. Y., in the Minuet Hall at 8:15 o'clock.
